PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 16, 1888.

The legal status of the Board of Education in its present issues with City Councils should be determined at once. Additional school facilities are greatly needed and the question as to which committee is to control the expenditure of the $250,000 appropriation is of little importance compared with the urgent demand for more school room. It looks as though the issue is a struggle for petty influence and that educational needs and wants must remain subservient to the personal feelings of the gentlemen connected with these two departments of the city government. In one ward of this city there are at least three thousand children waiting for admission to the public schools, which is denied them through the want of adequate facilities; and yet we have a quarter of a million of dollars appropriated for that purpose laying idle and which will not be used until this question of supremacy is settled. If the law as it is claimed is clearly with the Board of Education, then the sooner Council's School Committee are enjoined the better. At all events, sites should be secured and plans and contracts made as soon as possible, in order that school building may be vigorously pushed with the opening of spring.

It's about time city councils stepped in to protect the riders in horse cars against the grasping avariciousness of the street car companies. The over-crowded condition of the cars is outrageous, and the treatment women receive is indecent and vulgar. No true man wants to know that his wife or sister is forced to ride for blocks in the half embrace of a stranger—and that's just about what it amounts to. If councils are too weak-kneed to start the ball rolling against this outrageous imposition, our citizens should hold an indignation meeting, and handle both councils and companies without gloves.

MESSRS. R. D. WOOD & Co., of this city, recently received a contract for something like 300 tons of cast iron water pipes for Manchester, New Hampshire. The Gloucester Iron Works, of Gloucester, N. J., were also bidders for the same contract. It will thus be seen that Philadelphia material men have at least an equal chance with Boston and New York manufacturers, even in their own territory. The fact is, the long arm of Philadelphia enterprise could be made to reach much farther than it does now, for contracts for even the heaviest kind of material.

LARGE tracts of land in Burlington and Atlantic counties will in all probability be opened up for commercial and farming purposes, by the building of the proposed railroad from Hammononton to Tuckerton. A survey has been made for the projector, Joseph D. Wharton, of Philadelphia, who owns thousands of acres in this section of the country.

To finish a house with an excellent imitation of black walnut, said to be in reality the next best thing to black walnut itself, take one part of walnut peel extract, mixed with six parts of water, and coat common white pine with the solution, when half dry, rub with a solution of bichromate of potash and water; first make a few experiments on a small scale to get the process down fine.

ARCHITECTS are giving much more attention to the quality of stone used than formerly. Years ago the only question was how much per perch. The question is now, what does the microscope say or the hydraulic press. The microscope has revealed all qualities in stone, we might say, from leaden to cotton texture, and value ranges according to durability instead of according to perches.

THE Hotel Brighton at Coney Island, is being cut up into three parts in order to be moved back out of the way of the water. A triple-track elevated railroad will be built underneath each part, one hundred flat cars will be run under it, and a dozen or more engines coupled tandem-wise will pull each part out to the desired position.

THE Receiver of Taxes collected during the past year $15,654,384.60. Last year 1474 wills were probated. The fees and commissions of the department of the Register of Wills paid into the city $102,568.84. The losses by fire during the first eleven months in Philadelphia aggregated $863,778, and on properties damaged the insurance aggregated $6,160,118. The December fire losses throughout the country were $10,308,000; for same month, 1886, $11,200,000; total fire waste for the year, $129,264,000, or $13,000,000 greater than 1886.

It requires close reading to keep up with all the new building materials brought out. A new wood block flooring introduced is known as the nightingale. It forms a solid immovable surface and is especially adapted as a covering for a fire-proof floor. The blocks are laid with close fitting joints. This flooring receiving the highest award for superiority from the recently closed American Institute. Natural rock asphalt is also coming into more or less use for street purposes. Broken granite is combined with rock asphalt and is found to make an excellent pavement. It has been thoroughly tested abroad.

A Novel Fire Escape.

A patent has been recently issued to Professor George H. Thompson, of Reading, Pa., for an ingenious and seemingly a practical idea, which it is said works like a charm as a fire escape, and an aid to firemen in fighting fire. The invention consists of a steel brick made hollow, and painted to harmonize with the color of the front of any brick building. These bricks are constructed so as to contain a steel arm or ladder rung, which is sprung into place by the slightest touch on the surface of the brick. The bricks are to be firmly fastened and anchored in the front and rear walls at a distance of every two feet, running from the bottom to the top of a building, thereby forming a continuous ladder a fireman is enabled to climb with perfect safety, as each step is strong enough to bear a ton. It is stated that a company will be formed at Reading to manufacture and introduce them.

THE old established Maryland Law Record of Baltimore, has changed its name to the Maryland Law Journal, and Real Estate Record. It presents for its first number under the change, a tidy sixteen page paper, full of interest to the lawyer and real estate man. Its clever handling of law and real estate matters must command a large subscription list, and an enjoyable and prosperous business future.

At Lancaster, Pa., the new $125,000 four per cent. city loan, redeemable in five or twenty years at the city's option, was secured by Gilpen & Co., 311 Walnut street, Philadelphia, all or any part of the loan at the following figures: $5,000 at 2 per cent. premium, $10,000 at 2½ per cent., $10,000 at 2¼ per cent., $10,000 at 2½ per cent., $10,000 at 2½ per cent., $20,000 at 2½ per cent., $20,000 at 2¼ per cent., $10,000 at 2½ per cent., $10,000 at 3 per cent., $10,000 at 3½ per cent., and $10,000 at 3 per cent.

Judge Long secured $4,000 at 2½ per cent., and the remaining $121,000 was awarded to Gilpen & Co., at the figures given above, making an average premium of about 2½ per cent. It is alleged that Gilpen & Co., who are brokers at once sold the entire $121,000 to Philadelphia parties at an advance of 1 per cent. over their bid.

A reference to the seventy-eighth annual statement of the American Fire Insurance Company of this city, which we present on the first page of this journal, is of interest to the general readers as well as the owners of property who in placing their fire risks seek the best. There is a magnetic influence in millions of dollars securely invested, representing the assets of a Fire Insurance Company seeking public favor and the patronage of property owners; for they present a solid phalanx of security and safety of far greater meaning than the nicely turned sentences of the solicitor. This splendid showing is creditable to both the company and its officers. Make a note of it for use when you have property to insure.

"WOMAN" a new magazine which bids fair to make an ample place for itself in the literary world, has come to us filled with excellent matter, interesting alike to men and women. History, biography, art, poetry and fiction, together with short and pointed articles on vital questions of the day, appertaining to women and women's work, fill the pages with bright and readable matter. The illustrations are good, and the prospectus for 1888 offers superior inducement to subscribers for the coming year. This magazine is published by the Woman's Publishing Co., 122 Nassau street, N. Y. The subscription price is $2.75 a year.

Our Record.

1884—THE FIVE STEPS.—1888.

To protect the interests of Roofers, Property Owners, and Architects, desiring first-class Roofing Plates, we have taken the following successive steps, year by year:

1884

We issued the first positive and binding guarantee ever given with Roofing Plates.

1885

We began to stamp every sheet of our "Gilbertson's Old Method" and "Canaret" guaranteed Roofing Plates with the following guarantee: "We warrant the importation and sale of 'Wasters' of the 'Gilbertson's Old Method.'"

1886

We improved the coating of the "Canaret."

1887

We ceased the importation and sale of the "Wasters" of the "Canaret." We had every box of both the above brands stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

1888

We have arranged to still further protect the interests of those desiring the best Roofing Plates by having every box of the above brands marked with actual net weight of the plates in same.

A consideration of the above Five Steps will show how unjust it is to class other plates as equal to the above brands.

As the "Gilbertson's Old Method" weighs from 6 to 10 per cent. more than any other Dipped Plate, it is impossible for us to pay extra cost, duty and freight, and yet offer same in competition with lighter plates. Nor can plates of which the wasters are procurable, be classed or placed in competition with ours.

GEORGE W. HANCOCK.

THE PROMINENT REAL ESTATE OPERATOR, ENGINEER AND SURVEYOR, AND PRESIDENT OF THE REAL ESTATE EXCHANGE.

A city of such vast proportions as Philadelphia, and of such phenomenally rapid increase in extent, population and building operations, has naturally brought to the surface a class of men whose education, talent, energy and unceasing activity have had much to do towards making the "City of Homes" what it really is—one of the most attractive places of residence in the world. What Philadelphia is now, and what it is destined to become in the future, is in a great measure due to the operations of the "Real Estate men," and there are several hundred prominent gentlemen of that guild in the city who look after the interests of property owners, ascertain the valuation of lands and houses, dispose of landed property on advantageous terms to the owner or purchaser, rent or sell comfortable homes to those who want them, and deal in other kinds of real estate operations. One of the leading "Real Estate men" in Philadelphia is the subject of the following brief sketch, and a gentleman who is not only deeply immersed at the present time in real estate transactions of considerable magnitude, but who, by his superior talent and skill as an engineer and surveyor, has done valuable work in the way of municipal improvements of various kinds.

Mr. George W. Hancock, who was for many years actively employed in the Survey Department, but who now devotes his entire attention to real estate matters, can trace his lineage back for a period of about two hundred years. His family was originally from New Jersey. Richard Hancock, who was sent by Wm. Penn as Surveyor General of the Western part of that province, one of his direct ancestors, arrived here by the ship Griffin in June, 1675, and took up a tract of 500 acres of land in New Jersey, at a place that became known as "Hancock's Bridge," and the subject of this article is a branch of the sturdy family tree that was planted in that vicinity at that early day.

George W. Hancock has just turned 50 years of age, having been born in the Northern Liberties of Philadelphia, in March, 1837, where he resided until 1844, when the family moved to West Philadelphia, and have lived there ever since. He received his education at the old Locust Street Grammar School, which was supplemented by a course in engineering at the University of Pennsylvania, where he obtained the first insight into that branch of science for which he was naturally adapted and in which he made rapid progress. In 1855, Mr. Hancock was given a position in the City Surveyor's office, under Joseph Fox, and where he soon became intimately associated with Mr. Samuel L. Smedley, the present efficient chief engineer and surveyor, and which intimacy has continued ever since. Mr. Hancock remained in the office of the City Surveyor until 1872, when he was unanimously elected to take the place of Mr. Saml. L. Smedley when that gentleman was promoted to the position of chief engineer and surveyor, and he continued in that responsible position until 1879.

Mr. Hancock was engaged in many important works during his connection with the office of the City Surveyor, and among them he had charge of the construction of the Hestonville, Mantua and Fairmount Park Passenger Railway, the extension of the Market street and Chestnut and Walnut street lines. Mr. Hancock did highly important work for the city as an engineer and surveyor when the preparations for the Centennial Exposition were going on. He had direct charge of all the street, drainage, and passenger railway lines approaching the Centennial grounds in 1875-6, and was also engineer of the West End Passenger Railway line.

During the Centennial preparations the professional labors of Mr. Hancock were very arduous and exhausting, so much so that the work he performed night and day for a long time impaired his health and impelled him to retire from all active duties as an engineer and surveyor, and from that time he has devoted his energies mainly to real estate operations. During the War and at the time Philadelphia was threatened by the invading army of General Lee, Mr. Hancock was engaged with the U. S. Topographical Engineers in taking the topography for the location of the forts west of the Schuylkill, to defend Philadelphia in case of the advance of the Rebel Army.

There is not space in the limits of this article to state in detail the operations of Mr. Hancock while he was engaged as an engineer and surveyor, but it may be mentioned that he was employed by Messrs. Childs & Drexel to lay out their very extensive improvements at Wayne, on the line of the Penna. R. R.; he also laid out the plan for the Rutledge Land Association near Philadelphia, and which proved a very successful real estate enterprise, and he also made the topographical survey of the greater part of the 24th Ward and West Laurel Hill, and among other things he had charge for several years of the real estate, and appraised properties for the Girard Trust. He is the appraiser of property of a number of large corporations, extending from Boston and as far west as Minneapolis. He has had charge of as high as 1,300 houses at a time, and has examined some years as much as $6,000,000 Real Estate. Among the numerous positions of trust and honor held by Mr. Hancock are that of treasurer of the West Philadelphia Institute, treasurer of the Mantua Market Co., secretary and manager of Swarthmore College, president of the Home Purchasing Co., president of the Real Estate Exchange, president for many years of the Mantua Building Association, president of the Rutledge Mutual Improvement Co., manager of the Home for Aged and Infirm Colored Persons, and he is also an active member of the Commonwealth Title and Trust Co., and of the Friends' School Committees at Fifteenth and Race streets, as well as the West Philadelphia Charity Organization. In politics he is a consistent Republican, and was president of the 24th Ward Republican Executive Committee. A half century of existence sits very lightly on George W. Hancock. He is robust, active and healthy, and in manner he is pleasant, cheerful and agreeable. In all matters connected with real estate transactions, Mr. Hancock is remarkably quick of apprehension, and his judgment is always to be relied on. His mental strength and physical endurance, combined with a methodical style, enable him to

Refers with permission to William M. Slingerly,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 23, 1888.

THE builders and manufacturers of building material are more interested in knowing how many houses will be built and how much material will be sold during the coming year than what will be the increase in railroad construction or the increase in commercial exchanges, or in any other of the many commercial questions that seem to absorb the attention of the masses of the people. The architect is more interested in knowing how much money he will earn and how many houses he will plan and superintend. Store keepers and manufacturers are endeavoring to look as far into the future as possible in order to see the probable tendencies of trade, with a view of regulating their purchases and production accordingly. An enormous amount of statistical matter of a trade and financial character has been published during the past two or three weeks, most of which is too familiar to justify its repetition at this time. The sum total of all the figures simply means that more business has been done in 1887 than in 1886, or in other words, that better markets have been developed, that more shops and mills have been built, that capacity has been enlarged and that the country is in a better condition now than it ever has been. The most careful and patient study of commercial and industrial statistics will lead to this and no other conclusion. There are, however, a few points deserving of special attention, coming from practical men and men who have labor and material and skill to sell. We might anticipate the result of an inquiry in this direction by saying that as nearly as conclusions can be arrived at so far in advance, the country will have a year of great prosperity in every branch of industry, that margins will be somewhat lower than in the past season, that money will be a little tighter in a great many directions, that speculation will have a little broader field and do more harm; that collections will be looked after with a little more care and promptness, and that trade associations will combine and control operations with a little more success than they have in the past. In short, the spirit of combination which is now at work will go to greater lengths this season than last, and that there will not be quite so many opportunities for the individual corporation or individual syndicate or individual builder or business man as there has been for a year or two. This, however, is only an opinion but it is one based upon a careful study of all of the influences bearing upon the main question. If this conclusion is true, what is the wiser course? It is not hard to define it. Let us take a brief review of the entire business situation. Fifteen hundred millions of dollars have been invested, and this guess is as good as any other one, in building, railroad, manufacturing and other operations throughout the country during the past year. At first glance this would seem to promise a scarcity of money. This feature will not be discussed. The predictions of some of our wisest financiers in years past have turned out ridiculous, and no man, be he financier or not, seems to be able to predict three or six months in advance in regard to the influences of financial policies or combinations upon business affairs. There have been nearly thirteen thousand miles of main track and some six thousand miles of side track and repairs laid during the past year. In the Southern states $260,000,000 have been invested in manufacturing, mining and railroad building enterprise. We may safely say as much more will go in the same way this year. As to what lengths manufacturing enterprise will go in the Northern states it would be hazardous to say. As to what extent railroad building will be prosecuted in the Northwest it would be unwise to make a statement. The best opinion entertained is one that has been given by leading financial authorities in New York and Boston. They have given utterance to the statement that present indications point to a falling off in railroad building. These probabilities may be swept aside by fresh enterprise from unexpected sources, and the year 1888 may end with fully as much railroad track laid as in 1887. It is true that just now builders are hibernating. They want rails at $30, and rail makers want $32. In no other branch is there the same hesitancy. The iron trade at large is quite prosperous. The great coal strike is having very little influence upon it. The lumber manufacturers of the Northwest and South have entered upon the most extensive logging and milling operations they have ever known. Lumber in both Eastern and Western markets is being held at higher prices than last season. The calculation of the leading lumber operators in all sections of the country is to realize more money from their products than in 1887, but unless there is some change in the situation they will be disappointed. The railroads have opened up a great deal of hard wood and soft wood territory North and South, and they are anxious for traffic. This means the encouragement of a great deal of lumber manufacturing enterprise. Builders need not take fright over any upward tendency in that direction. Even at this time contracts for large amounts of lumber can be placed with manufacturers at low prices. No possible trade combination among lumber manufacturers can prevent this downward tendency.

The financial measures which have been introduced in Congress are calculated to give more power to the National bankers, and enable them to use more money on a given capital than they are now. The bills show that there is a general stretching of privileges all around. The circumstances of the country seem to call for either an entirely new system or a radical improvement of our present one. There is a strong undertone of sentiment among the American people against conferring more important privileges upon the National banks, and it is to be hoped that the debates in Congress will show that the old spirit of Democratic jealousy of powerful combinations is still alive. The financial question is just at present not a threatening one, but it is a question which must sooner or later forge its way to the front, and command an entirely different settlement from any that have been offered.

BUSINESS is business, and must be attended to, no matter how high the ocean's billows may roll. Consequently on the twenty-eighth instant, Mr. Frank Williamson, stone merchant, 2202 Chestnut street, will embark on the steamer Servia from New York, on a 30-day business trip to France and England. There is a ring of business enterprise in Mr. Williamson, and this is one of its manifestations.

THE coming year promises to be a big one for public buildings. The fever will spread. Already the list extends over forty cities. The people want to ease Uncle Sam of his troubles concerning a surplus.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

CONTRACT:—Where it is admitted that work sued for was done under a contract, by which its price was definitely fixed, but there is a conflict as to what the contract price was, evidence as to what others would have done the work for is inadmissible.

SEIBERT vs. HOUSEHOLDER.

Oct. 3, 1887.

CHECK:—The holder of a bank check has no right of action against the bank on the check, unless it has been accepted by the bank.

The drawer of a bank check which has been dishonored by the bank, although it has funds of the drawer to meet it, may sue the bank for damages, or for the amount of his deposit, but cannot in any event maintain an action against the bank on the check itself.

BANK vs. SHOEMAKER.

Oct. 3, 1887.

CARRIERS:—An agent for soliciting orders, his employers in Philadelphia, reserving the right of rejection, sent in an order from L. Behrend at Washington. Plaintiffs knowing no such person, but supposing "A. Behrend," who had bought before, was intended, delivered the goods marked "A. Behrend" to the defendant, a railroad company, to transmit from Philadelphia to Washington. When they arrived L. Behrend claimed them. A. Behrend although still in Washington was out of business. After ascertaining from the agent what kind of goods he had sold to L. Behrend, the defendant delivered the goods to L. Behrend, and heard nothing from the goods until two months after shipping, when they received a notice that L. Behrend had made an assignment for creditors. The assigned estate paid no dividend, and action was brought against the railroad company for the value of the goods. Held the defendant was liable to the plaintiff for their value.

WERNWAG vs. R. R. Co.

Oct. 3, 1887.

LANDLORD AND TENANT:—In an action for rent reserved in a lease, it is not (without proof that the lessee while in possession was led by the fraud of the lessor to execute the lease) a good defence that the lessee executed the lease in ignorance of his rights and was in fact the owner of the premises.

The admission of evidence in support of such a defence would violate the rule that a tenant cannot dispute his landlord's title.

SCHOOL DISTRICT vs. LONG.

Oct. 3, 1887.

PARTNERSHIP:—A partnership is a distinct entity, and the joint effects belong to it, and not to the several partners.

A levy on partnership goods for a debt of a partner creates no lien on the goods. Hence a subsequent levy on the same goods for a partnership debt, and a sale thereunder vests a good title in the purchaser.

RICHARD vs. ALLEN.

Oct. 3, 1887.

SALE:—In the absence of evidence of fraud, accident, or mistake, in the execution of an instrument of writing, the Court must instruct the jury to find in accordance with its legal effect.

The insertion of the words "after the above mentioned notes are fully paid and satisfied, and not before" in the clause of warranty, will not alter the effect of an otherwise absolute bill of sale of chattels.

TAGG vs. BEHRING.

Oct. 3, 1887.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER:—A purchaser of land who retains a portion of the purchase money to secure the removal of incumbrances by the vendor, is, in the absence of agreement as to interest, liable for the interest on the amount so retained.

BUILDING, of New York, repeats and corroborates the statement recently made by a financial journal of that city that the projected building operations involve the outlay of $66,500,000, or $8,000,000 in excess of last year's outlay. During last March and April the permits taken out called for the expenditure of $25,000,000.

THE last meeting of the T Square Club met at the rooms of Frank Miles Day. The programme was a classical tomb to cover not over four hundred square feet, and required a plan elevation of not over three-quarter scale, perspective optional. Mr. Cope received the first mention, Mr. Hickman, second, and Mr. King, third.

The next meeting will be the third Wednesday of February, when the programme will be a wall decoration. Particulars will be sent to members.

The club is gradually making for itself a name in this as in other cities, and is accomplishing the object of its formation, that is, the advancement of the profession in both a technical and social sense.

The Academy of Fine Arts requested the club to take charge of the exhibition of architectural drawings held in connection with their regular yearly exhibition, and this year the Philadelphia Chapter of The American Institute of Architects, together with the T Square Club, were asked by the Academy to appoint a joint committee for the same purpose. Mr. Ruskin has promised the architectural exhibition some drawings of French cathedrals. Mr. Moore, of Boston, has promised the same, and E. Eldon Dean's large water colors of the Public buildings will also be on exhibition. Mr. La Farge will send in some of his latest decorative work. The exhibition will doubtless be of the first order, as nearly all of the Philadelphia architects, as well as those from New York and Boston, will be represented.

Obituary.

This week it becomes our sad duty to chronicle the death of William P. Messick, who died Sunday, January 15th, at the home of his father Rev. John F. Messick, of Blawenburg, N. J.

Failing health compelled Mr. Messick to leave the city early in September of last year, and a personal letter from his father conveys to us the intelligence of his death, after months of patient suffering on his part, and tender care on that of his relatives.

Mr. Messick was graduated at Rutgers College, N. J., and admitted to the Bar in Bergen county, of the same State. Subsequently he placed himself under the tuition of ex-Judge Carroll F. Brewster of this city, and soon after became a prominent member of the Philadelphia Bar, where he distinguished himself alike for the brilliancy of his mind, the extent of his knowledge, and a keen sense of honor in all his professional and business relations. To these characteristics he added eminent social qualities that made him many and lasting friends.

Although his connection with the Real Estate Record was of short duration, it was long enough to earn our esteem for his many good qualities, and our appreciation of his loss, now that he is gone.

THE city is to have $250,000 for public schools, and the temporary hitch as to who will divide it up, Councils or the Board of Education, will not last long.

Miscellaneous.

At Albany (P. O. town), Dougherty Co., Ga., R. A. Hall will erect a large warehouse.

Cope & Stewardson, 212 S. Third street, are making the plans for a house of English design for Mrs. Bispham, of Haverford, Pa. The type of architecture will be such as is found among the country houses of Surrey county, England. The building will be three stories high, of stucco above the second floor, and much half timber work, which is to be hewn and not sawed, as is generally the case. The interior finish is to be carried out in the same old-country style. A large fireplace with an opening five feet in width will be placed in the hall, with seats at the sides. The rooms on the first floor will consist of hall, library and dining-room; on the second floor there will be five bed-rooms and a dressing-room, the approach being through an oriel window by a pair of steps from the side. The third floor will consist of the servants' quarters and other necessary rooms. The cost when completed will be about $13,000. The same gentlemen have on the boards an alteration for Samuel Bodine, on Queen Lane, Germantown, a new stairway and an additional room will be built.

The wall faces of the first story to be rock face, with joints pitched from the bed. The outside facings of the building and chimneys on the fronts and sides above the line of the second floor, to consist of dark buff "Telephone" bricks, and every sixth course will be Flemish bond. All east and north outside walls, from the ground to the height of the stone fronts, will be faced with red brick laid in dark mortar. The walls of the light well, east west and north, faced with white enameled English bricks laid with white mortar. The jambs and heads of front windows from the second to the eighth story inclusive, the oriel and tower windows, the engaged pilasters and other details will be of buff terra-cotta to match the brick work. There will be two entrances, one on Broad, the other on Chestnut street. The floors of the front entrance hall and vestibule, stair halls and corridors and toilet rooms, will be paved with white Italian marble. The interior of the building is to be fitted up with an idea to safety, combined with the comfort and convenience of the occupants. An ornamental portcullis, with wicket at the Chestnut street entrance, will be moved by hydraulic power. Electroliers, gas-fixtures, and safes of the best patterns will be used, as well as all the latest and best sanitary appliances, making this building to stand one of the best of the recently erected office buildings.

Banquet of the Master Builders' Exchange.

The first annual banquet of the Master Builders' Exchange, held at St. George's Hall, on Tuesday evening, January 24th, marked a "red letter night" in the annals of this flourishing organization.

Nearly three hundred well-known business men, identified with the building interest of the city, together with many distinguished guests, sat down to the delightful banquet prepared for the celebration of the first anniversary.

When it is remembered that these gentlemen represent a branch of industry by which nine thousand building operations with a consequent outlay of over twenty-five million of dollars, distinguished the year 1887 above its fellows, the seven preceding years, which show a yearly average of only five thousand operations, we no longer wonder at the spirit of congratulation and good fellowship, that pervaded the members of the Exchange present.

Some one has said, and truly, that the strength of a nation is in its homes, and of one thing we may be sure—in the nine thousand operations mentioned by John S. Stevens, President of the Exchange, in the first speech of the evening, there are without doubt more homes than can be shown by any similar number of operations in the "big round world." Home means happiness, and joy in living, a fireside with wife and children, and a moral atmosphere whose influence cannot be reckoned as the world counts.

In doing this, by putting within the comparatively poor man's grasp the possibility of a home, and consequent pure living, the "Master Builders' Exchange" has builded better than it knew, "not for our age only but for all time."

In his speech the President also referred to the growing interest manifested in the Exchange; to its rapid increase in membership, which, from twenty-five members at the beginning, now numbers two hundred and thirty prominent business men, and of the probability of a new structure being erected on the property purchased by the Exchange on Seventh street. The contemplated building will be complete in every particular, having offices for members and architects, a permanent exhibition room for the display of material and devices used in the construction of buildings, and a dining hall at the top of the house. The establishment of much needed trade schools is also under consideration by the Exchange.

President Cleveland, Governor Beaver, Geo. W. Childs, Frederick Fraley, and Theophilus P. Chandler, sent letters of regret at not being able to be present.

At the conclusion of Mr. Stevens' Chandler address, the toasts of the evening were responded to as follows: "Our Honored guests," by E. Cooper Shapley, Esq.; "The National Association of Builders," by William H. Sayward of Boston, Secretary of the National Master Builders' Association; "The State of Pennsylvania," by Colonel A. Loudon Snowden; "The Architects," by James H. Windrim; "The City of Philadelphia," by Charles Lawrence, President of Common Council; "Our Sister Exchanges," by Robert C. Lippincott, President of the Lumberman's Exchange; "The Press," by ex-Mayor William B. Smith; "Our Wives and Sweethearts" by Hampton L. Carson.

The enjoyment of the evening was further augmented by the choice selection of music fittingly rendered by the Mozart Quartette and Hassler's orchestra. Of the banquet itself, it is not necessary to speak. Philadelphia may have poor gas, an inadequate supply of pure water, and insufficient means of rapid transit, but in matters gastronomic she stands boldly to the fore, being "equaled by few and surpassed by none." The hall was handsomely decorated with flowers, and the tables with bouquets and fancy candelabra; the menu card was beautifully illustrated with engravings of original designs, and made a unique souvenir of the occasion, as did also the house in miniature, of which each guest became a fortunate possessor.

Among the guests and members present were William Brockie, President of the Maritime Exchange; General Louis Wagner, President Charles Lawrence, of Common Council; David A. Woelpper, ex-Mayor William B. Smith, James V. Watson, Joseph B. Hancock, John J. Tucker, Samuel Huhn, Craig D. Ritchie, J. R. Rigney, Benjamin H. Shoemaker, J. R. Jones, Wm. W. Ker, Benjamin Whitcomb, Titus Berger, W. W. Bishop, James B. Canby, A. G. Boyd, Wm. T. Wilkins, William Waterall, S. B. Vrooman, Marc Eidlitz, George W. Hancock, James Zimmerman, George G. White, John S. Davis, Robert C. Lippincott, R. V. Matson, M. D., Thomas J. Lindsay, Jacob Jones, Joseph M. Hancock, George W. Royd-

At the annual business meeting, which was held the same day, January 24th, at the Exchange, Third and Walnut streets, reports from the various committees showed the business of the organization to be in a highly satisfactory and flourishing condition. The receipts for the year, reported by Charles H. Reeves, the treasurer, were over $97,000, of which $75,000 was paid for one property on Seventh street. There now remains in the treasury a balance of $11,000. This showing, taking into consideration that the organization has just completed its first year, conveys more evidence of its growth and prosperity than columns of comment or fulsome praise, and it must strike every intelligent reader as "passing strange" that Philadelphia, with her population of one million, that must have homes, with her immense resources and unsurpassed natural facilities, had not before a year ago become the home of just such a thoroughly equipped and wide awake Master Builders' Exchange as we now have, and to which we extend our sincerest wish for its long continued prosperity. The following gentlemen were elected as a board of directors for three years: Stacy Reeves, George Watson, William F. Albertson, Fred. F. Myhlertz, William C. McPherson, Jr., George W. Roydhouse and J. S. Thorn, William Gray was elected to fill an unexpired term of two years. The Exchange will send seven delegates, with as many alternates, to the National Convention, which will be held at Cincinnati, on Tuesday, February 7th, besides which quite a number of members will accompany the delegates. There is a probability of the next National Convention being held in Philadelphia, the Exchange having passed resolutions inviting it to hold its next session in this city in 1889.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, JAN. 30, 1888.

The prospects for the coming season are good. Several large buildings will be erected in commercial interests.

If the Pennsylvania Railroad Company constructs its projected five miles of elevated road through Pittsburgh, it will furnish not a little business for the lumber men, and iron and steel makers.

CONSIDERABLE effort is being made to utilize the old Temple theatre site. Negotiations were pending with the Union Trust, the Chestnut Street Bank and the Commonwealth, the nature of which was to build a large office building to be occupied by these three companies. The refusal of one of the companies to enter into this arrangement has delayed matters somewhat. The property is valued at four hundred thousand dollars, the owner having refused an offer of three hundred and fifty thousand.

The number of transfers of real estate reported from day to day and week to week indicates what real estate agents and brokers said some months ago was correct, namely, that a large and steady real estate business would be done throughout the winter. A study of these transfers shows that there is a transformation in progress in the older section of the city, and that business houses and establishments will take the place of dwellings, that small business concerns will be driven out. A building authority has recently stated that the number of large five- to eight-story factories in the central portion of the city will increase in number. There is a demand for motive power by a number of small users who cannot afford to furnish their own power, because of the high cost of ground and the necessity of utilizing space to the very highest degree. The few large establishments that have been erected within the past three or four years are all well tenanted, and the demand which is now showing itself will increase the number.

THERE is quite a strong competition among the stone quarrying interests of the country. The testimony of experts and of users as well as the preferences of builders are all being used to further the claims of one stone against another. A careful examination shows that there is more difference as to quality and durability than was supposed in years past. A good deal of capital has been attracted into the business of late, and two or three deposits of some importance within a short distance of Philadelphia are soon to be brought into the market.

If all the projected work is entered upon next spring, there will be lively times in the building trades. Yet we are told by a good many authorities, that may be very poor ones, that things will be rather slack. About the truth of the matter is that the great bulk of business men and manufacturers are willing and anxious to push work and have the money or credit to push it, and if things go right, they will go ahead, if not they will hold back. This tells the story about as well as it can be told. The legitimate requirements are abundant enough all over the country.

MUCH of the agitation in favor of technical and manual training schools is created by writers who are entirely unfamiliar with the actual requirements of what may be termed a practical education. No amount of school or theoretical education can take the place of the practical experience of the shop. It is right here where so many make a mistake.

A good many editors write as though mechanics could be turned out like book-keepers. While a great advance could be made by a properly devised system of technical education, and the system ought to be devised, yet the actual work of the mechanic of the future is to be done in the workshop, and there his real education must be acquired.

If some poor devil of a drayman whose poverty prevented him from obtaining more than an apology for a horse, was to inflict a tithe of the suffering upon his steed that the poor overloaded car horses have to bear, some stalwart member of the P. C. to A. Society would be horrified, and vigorous interference and arrest would certainly follow. The worse than brutish cruelty inflicted upon car horses is enough to arouse the sensibilities of a butcher. Cars containing fifty per cent. more people than they should be allowed to carry even in the best of weather, drawn by smoothly-shod horses, without even calks or toe pieces upon their shoes, straining until it would seem they must fall from sheer exhaustion, and yet not even a solitary word of protest or interference from the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Can it be possible that the Society is afraid to tackle these wealthy Street Railway corporations?

THERE seems to be quite a diversity of opinion as to the establishment of a new sugar refinery in this city. Several prominent business men state that it is very doubtful if such a building will be erected, as they can see no necessity for one, and cite this fact as a substantiation of their theory that many sugar refineries, both in this and other cities, have suspended operations within the past few years. On the other hand, men equally prominent in mercantile circles declare that this new industry will be established and in working order within the next eighteen months. They state that the site for the building has been selected, that the building itself will be fitted up with the latest improved machinery, and that its annual product will amount to $18,000,000. The reason given by men on this side of the question for the permanent closing of refineries, is that the old methods of manufacture are entirely inadequate, and also that the sugar trust has been the means of closing many. As long as these matters are in their present condition, nothing at all definite can be stated, for when doctors disagree, who can decide? Many of the above are prominent sugar men of this city, whom we are not allowed to quote.

ON Vine street above Fifth, Camden, Robert Kaighn, one of that city's most active builders, will erect twelve very pretty two-story houses, six on each side of the street. The cellars have been dug and the foundations laid for nearly twelve years. This spot is where the Hunter-Armstrong murder occurred, about ten or a dozen years since. The assassin, together with his accomplice Graham, hid in one of these cellars and sprang out on their victim. Graham's heart failed him after one blow and the murder was committed by his companion. After this they ran down the alley way at the side of the houses and disappeared. The hammer with which the deed was committed was found, and came very near bringing an innocent man to the gallows, had not Graham made a confession which resulted in bringing the murderer to the gallows. Graham is serving a sentence of twenty years; since that time nothing has been done with the operation, and as the cellars are nearly filled up and most of the foundation walls in a condition unfit for building the work will have to be entirely done over.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

ASSIGNMENT FOR CREDITORS:—A purchaser of property at an assignee's sale cannot be affected by a private agreement between two of his predecessors in the title, which was not recorded and of which he had no notice.

The admissions of the purchaser as to what he supposed he was to get by his purchase, amount to nothing; his rights are defined by the deed, and these can neither be enlarged nor abridged by his declarations.

STIFFLER vs. KETZLOFF.
Oct. 3, 1887.

DEVISE:—Where a father by will devises land in "fee simple" to his son, and the son dies after the date of his father's will, leaving his widow and several children surviving him, and the deviser adds a codicil devising said land in "fee simple" to said son's widow while she should remain a widow of his son; held (1.), that the devisee had only a life estate therein, with remainder to the heirs of her husband; (2.), that such devisee could not make a good and sufficient deed in "fee simple," as she had covenanted to do, and that the appellee who had covenanted for the land in "fee simple" was wholly released from his part of the contract.

McGUIRE vs. McGUIRE.
Oct. 25, 1887.

HUSBAND AND WIFE:—Land devised to husband and wife is held by them by entireties.

If the husband survives the wife, a sheriff's sale made after the wife's death, on a judgment recovered against the husband after the devise and before her death, divests the lien of a mortgage executed by the wife, the husband joining, after the entry of the judgment.

FLEEK vs. ZILLHAUER.
Oct. 17, 1887.

LANDLORD AND TENANT:—In an action against a surety for the performance of a covenant in a lease to surrender the premises in as good condition as they were at any time during the term, inevitable casualty excepted, where the building leased had been destroyed by fire during the term, held, that it was for the jury to determine from the evidence whether the fire could have been reasonably prevented, and that it was not error for the court to refuse to withdraw the facts from the jury.

If the building was destroyed by fire without any negligence or fault of the lessee or his surety, and all the efforts which were practicable under the circumstances were made to save the building, neither the tenant nor the surety can be liable.

KELLY vs. DUFFY.
Oct. 31, 1887.

NOTICE NOT TO SELL TO WIFE:—Where goods have been sold to a married woman after express notice from her husband to the seller not to sell to her, the mere fact that they are permitted by the husband to remain in his house does not amount to such a ratification of the unauthorized purchase as will render him liable therefor.

In such a case the husband is not compelled in order to relieve himself from liability to return the goods, nor to notify the seller that he may remove them.

SEGELBAUM vs. ENSMINGER.
Oct. 3, 1887.

SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE:—In a suit for specific performance of a contract to convey land, where the averment that the purchase money has been fully paid is denied, and a receipt is exhibited acknowledging that $2000 had been received from a third party on the contract, and that in consideration of this advance by such third person, the defendant is to convey the land to the plaintiffs decedent, "and he to execute a judgment bond to her (such third party) for the amount, secured by mortgage on same property" such third party is a necessary party to the bill, that she may have the opportunity of proving that the decedent was a party to and acquiesced in the arrangement, and thereupon the court should decree that before the conveyance is made to plaintiffs, or simultaneously therewith, the sum advanced to her should be secured on the premises.

A Yankee Sign in Mexico.

It is not Yankee capital alone that has invaded the land of the Aztecs, for American ideas and methods are gradually being introduced by visitors as well as residents in that country. It was reserved for a Philadelphia merchant to astonish the natives of the city of Mexico with a sample of the practical methods the American merchant has for making himself known. Mr. Thomas Dupuy, the carpet dealer at 35 North Second street, opposite Christ church, recently visited Mexico. As a result of that visit there can now be seen painted in large Yankee letters on a high blank wall standing on one of the principal thoroughfares, an immense sign which reads: Buy your carpet from Thomas Dupuy, 35 North Second street, Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, U. S. A. The sign of course is unintelligible to many of the natives, but it expresses the Yankee characteristic of making himself felt and known on no matter what part of the inhabited globe he finds himself. There may be much for the traveler and tourist to see in Mexico, but there is one thing which the Philadelphia visitor will not fail to look for, and that is Tom Dupuy's big carpet sign, with its reminder of sweet home.

In 1885, the commissioners of Erie county, Pa., owing to the refusal of the authorities of the city of Erie to permit the engine houses to be used for holding elections, imposed a county tax upon the real estate belonging to the city, including the engine houses and water works properties. This was resisted by the city authorities, and the case was tried before the Erie County Court. There it was held that the tax was illegal and could not be enforced. The County Commissioners appealed to the Supreme Court, where it was held that the lower Court—Judge Gailbraith—erred as to its decision as to the water works, but was correct as to the engine houses. Now, however, in the case of the Borough of Sewickley, Pa. vs. T. M. Sholes, the Supreme Court has recently ruled that the County Commissioners have no right to tax city property, and that the act under which taxes were levied in both cases is in violation of Article III, section 3, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Chicago's Republican Convention Building.

At Chicago, Ill., the Republican Convention building is being pushed forward as rapidly as the weather will permit. It is the determination of the association to push the work so as to complete the main halls in time for the convention to be held in June next. The auditorium will seat 8000 people. The site includes nearly two acres of ground, which is valued at $1,000,000. The building fronts on Michigan Boulevard, and its sides rest on Wabash avenue and Congress street. It is calculated that the structure will cost about $2,200,000 when completed. The hall is to be finished as a theatre complete with every facility for that purpose. Part of the building will be constructed for hotel purposes, and will contain 500 rooms. The upper part of the tower to be used by the U. S. Signal Service.

THE insurance loss through fire in this city during 1887 was over $1,000,000. Eleven per cent. of this loss it is estimated by experts was caused by defective flues. This statement certainly points to a degree of carelessness amounting to criminality, and the question presents itself as to where the responsibility belongs. Our building inspectors as a rule are faithful to the trust imposed upon them, but it is impossible to have every house constructed under the personal supervision of an inspector. The fact is foolishness has gone about far enough. The insurance companies, who are the most interested, will not or cannot suggest a remedy, yet it seems that something should be done to prevent the present enormous fire waste.

We believe in ex-Health-officer Major Veale's practical methods of preventing disease, and this fire disease, which is now consuming property in this city alone at the rate of millions yearly, should be treated in the same vigorous manner in which Major Veale while health officer treated the Small-pox. And if an inspection proved that our city ordinances had been disregarded in the construction of a building, then let the offender no matter how mighty in money or politics, pay the penalty, a court imposes without fear or favor. A few lessons of this sort would not be forgotten.

Lot Buyers.

NOTE.—Many of these lots have been purchased for building purposes, and it might pay to correspond with the purchasers.

Our Record.

1884.—THE FIVE STEPS.—1888.

To protect the interests of Roofers, Property Owners and Architects, desiring first-class Roofing Plates, we have taken the following successive steps, year by year:

1884 We issued the first positive and binding guarantee ever given with Roofing Plates.

1885

We began to stamp every sheet of our "Gilbertson's Old Method" Roofing Plates with brand and thickness, and ceased the importation and sale of "Wasters" of the "Gilbertson's Old Method."

1886

We improved the coating of the "Camaret."

1887

We ceased the importation and sale of the "Wasters" of the "Camaret." We had every box of both the above brands, stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

1888

We have arranged to still further protect the interests of those desiring the best Roofing Plates by having every box of the above brands, stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

A consideration of the above Five Steps will show how unjust it is to class other plates as equal to the above brands.

As the "Gilbertson's Old Method" weighs from 6 to 10 per cent. more than any other dipped Plate, it is impossible for us to pay extra cost, duty and freight, and yet offer same, in competition with lighter plates. Nor can plates, of which the wasters are procurable, be classed or placed in competition with ours.

A MARVELLOUS INVENTION.

A Method Quicker, Safer, and Cheaper than the Telephone; Great Relief Promised for Commercial Men.

To anticipate the future range of usefulness to which electricity may be applied, is one of the many probabilities the mind of man has not as yet grasped. Almost daily the public is called upon to "season its admiration for awhile," as the wonderful versatility of this subtle force is expressed in some new application or invention, grander, broader, and even more practical than any of its predecessors, which in themselves embraced so much that they were for the time being regarded as the very par excellence of genius and utility.

That electricity would entwine its strong arms around the type writer, and thus increase that little and exceedingly valuable instrument's worth to the commercial and professional world, was never dreamed of until the inventive mind of Mr. J. H. Linville really placed upon it a veritable harness of electricity, and sent it galloping over the whole wide world, bearing messages for all purposes, and in every language.

That this has been done, and well done, an interested group of newspaper men, who were on Wednesday last gathered in the offices of The International Printing Telegraph Company, 417 Walnut street, is willing to attest. At that time, notwithstanding the unavoidable absence of Mr. Linville, so much was done and so little left undone in demonstrating the value and utility of the invention, that nothing in the way of transmitting messages seemed impossible for the little instrument to accomplish.

In order that both termini—that from which, as well as that to which, the message is sent—might be under the eye of the observer, and that the power and practical utility of the invention might be fully appreciated, two instruments were used, which were placed a few feet apart in the same room. The operator, who evinced some embarrassment, was a young man enlisted on the occasion, owing to the absence of Mr. Linville, and who perhaps failed to give that clear scientific explanation of the merits of the invention that might justly have been expected from Mr. Linville had he been present, consequently every observer was impressed with the fact that the test was one of unusual merit, on which the instrument had to stand or fall on its own excellence, without the adventitious aid of a skilful manipulator; being, so to speak, as a gentleman present happily expressed it, like a horse race, wherein a horse had to run in order to win, and as this exhibition was, as such tests should be, free from the rhetorical pyrotechnics that usually accompany the efforts of demonstrators to make plain the value of their inventions, the result was far more satisfactory to those present, and advantageous concerning the value of the invention.

The introduction of Mr. Linville's invention will certainly be hailed by the business world as offering a hope of succor from the tyranny and extortion of the telephone monopoly; for notwithstanding the usefulness of the telephone, there is much of which to complain, besides the extortionate charges of the company, and the general inefficiency of the service, besides which the present telephonic system never will, perhaps, be able to rid itself of the perverseness of instruments and wires, and the unintelligible jargon which at times reaches the ear of the best of listeners, when time is money and every word freighted with gold.

That the telephone must follow the universal laws of progress, and become a victim to the survival of the fittest, is just as certain as the law of gravitation, and the only question now is, how soon Mr. Linville's company will be able to offer this Printing Telegraph to the commercial world.

The proposition is, as we understand it, to adopt a system that will embrace all of the present desirable short distance advantages of the Bell Telephone system without any of its many undesirable features, together with the no inconsiderable difference, that distance is not limited under the Linville system. Again, it will entirely eliminate the risk of mis-understanding, as the flash that leaves the sending instrument imprints upon a sheet of paper in type-writing letters as plain as ink can make them, every sign, symbol, figure and letter that is sent. By this means the faculty of guessing what the sender of the message meant—as is often necessary in the present telephone system—needs no longer to be cultivated, after the introduction of the Linville instrument, and no matter whether the person for whom the message is intended be in his office or out of it, the instrument records the message and holds it sacred for the eye of its owner or operator until he come, besides which the operator can cut out other instruments, leaving the instruments in use in absolute secrecy. Again, the message may be sent to a single instrument, or to a number, as in the present telephone system a central station being necessary, where connections can be made with the instruments of other subscribers.

Thus it will be seen that a safer, better and more expeditious method of transmitting messages has really been discovered, and is even now in practical working order; a method free from complications and extravagance, so free from complexity that a little school-boy could make himself perfectly understood a thousand miles away, with no greater effort on his part than that of spelling the words by pressing the keys representing the letters, as on a type-writer. In fact, anything and everything that can be accomplished by any existing telegraph or telephone system, can be done better, cheaper and more expeditiously by the Linville system, of which the International Printing Telegraph Company, at 417 Walnut street, is the owner, and no better evidence of the intention of the company to "push things" is needed than the fact that the company's factory is now manufacturing machines for supplementary companies, many of which have already been organized. No mention is made here of the scientific or mechanical elements of this invention, as they are fully set forth in a pamphlet prepared by Mr. Linville, which can be had on application.

Refers with permission to William M. Slingerly,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 6, 1888.

It is not so many months ago that The Times of this city recorded the fact that a poor, helpless creature, already in the pangs of child-birth, was found walking the streets of this great city because she was unable to gain admission to any of our many hospitals and charitable institutions. To-day The Times is asking its readers to designate some charity to which some one with more money than brains should devote $50,000 of which he wants to get rid. The Times might suggest as its own idea that the money could be well spent in running an emergency hospital, where red tape and circumlocution would be superseded by common sense and indiscriminating charity.

The sharp practices of our city railway companies must sooner or later bring upon them the vengeance of a much abused people. Trick after trick has been played with impunity, and the people patiently suffer without a word of complaint; there has already been enough of the most contemptible imposition practiced right here in Philadelphia to have caused a half dozen first-class riots in either Chicago or New York. The street railway companies seem to spare no effort to prevent the growth of the city, and now that the city is extending its built-up area, now that the influences that have made Philadelphia the most desirable city on the whole continent to live in, are being felt, and a perfect influx of population of the most desirable character is coming in, the street railway companies, through their short-sighted policy and wicked avariciousness, are becoming inimical to continued growth and development. The little game of the People's line to steal a few five-cent pieces from those who, through mistake, take the Fairmount avenue car for an Eighth street—or vice versa—is simply contemptible, for the two roads being under one management it makes very little difference—outside of the small cost of keeping a transfer agent at the corner of Fairmount avenue and Eighth street—which road really hauls the passenger to Fairmount avenue.

Conductors frequently play tricks of this kind upon passengers, but this is the first case on record where managers have descended to the tricks of a thimble rigger or a three card monte sharp.

JUDGE ERMENTROUT, of Berks Co., Pa., has recently decided, in a case brought under the act of 1887, granting cities the authority to collect the cost of street grading from abutting property owners, the act to be unconstitutional and invalid, and that the cost of such work must be paid out of the general fund of the city treasury. The City of Reading, which brought the suit, will appeal to the Supreme Court.

In a conversation with one of our prominent real estate men he said, "you can quote me in this, that property in central locations is stagnated. It is almost an impossible thing to sell properties on Chestnut street. A case in point is that of the American Hotel, which was put up for sale twice, and both times was bought in by the Ridgway Estate." The reason given for this state of affairs was that the increase of taxation and the enormous price of property in this vicinity, practically puts it beyond the reach of profitable investment. Another very pertinent complaint is made by builders, and that is the regulations of the Board of Health compelling each house to have a separate drainage. Under the old law one set of drain pipes could be used for two houses, but at the present time each building must have its own set of pipes, materially adding to the cost of the house.

The following table shows the operations in the respective wards for the four weeks in January of this year, for which building permits have been granted.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

AGREEMENT TO EXTEND TIME OF PAYMENT:—A payment of interest after the maturity of a debt is not a sufficient consideration to support an agreement to extend the time for payment; and a promise of extension given under such circumstances will not release a surety. Even an extension for valuable consideration will not release a joint debtor.

BORING'S APPEAL.
Oct. 3, 1887.

DOWER:—A widow's dower, after ascertainment by the Orphans' Court, is an estate in the land, and will not, in the absence of express agreement, be destroyed or divested by a sheriff's sale of the land in execution of a judgment for arrears of interest due the widow. There is no identity of interest and principal. The former alone belongs to the widow, the latter to the heirs. A judgment for the interest is in no sense a judgment for the principal or any part of it.

TOSPON vs. SIFE.
Oct. 3, 1887.

HUSBAND AND WIFE:—A contract in writing entered into in 1869, for the sale of land to a married woman, on condition that she shall pay the purchase money in annual instalments and interest, taxes and assessments, and shall reside upon and improve the land, and that upon her failure to make the payments promptly or her abandonment of the premises untenanted before the completion of the contract, the payments made shall be forfeited and the contract become void, and the vendor or his assigns may sell the land to any other person—is, notwithstanding the vendee's coverture, a valid contract, because it can be enforced against the land without charging her personally.

Upon breach, by failure to pay more than the interest of the unpaid purchase money, and by abandonment for more than two years, an actual re-entry by the vendor is unnecessary if he sells the land thereupon to another person.

The return of the vendee, without the knowledge of the vendor or second vendee, to the premises a few weeks before the second sale, does not affect the validity of such sale.

EMERY vs. GOLLIER,
Oct. 3, 1887.

MORTGAGE:—One who is not under a legal duty to make inquiry for incumbrances is not chargeable with constructive notice for failing to make inquiry.

A clause in a deed that the conveyance is "subject nevertheless to a certain mortgage of $1000—unto B. of the county of C.—is not sufficient to put a subsequent innocent purchaser upon inquiry for a mortgage of $1000—to A. the lien of which the records show to have been devested by Orphans' Court sale to pay the mortgagor's debts, but which is in fact unpaid and has been assigned by unrecorded assignment by A. to B.

The equitable lien of an unrecorded mortgage is discharged by a sheriff's sale upon a subsequent incumbrance.

BROWNBACK vs. OZIAS,
Oct. 3, 1887.

TRUST:—A bill in equity alleging that the defendant agreed to purchase real estate for the plaintiff, at a sheriff's sale, does not state facts which raise a trust of any kind. Fraud at the time of the sale or the payment of the purchase money, is necessary in order to toll the statute of 1856.—(Statute of frauds.)

MCALL vs. ROURKE,
Oct. 31, 1887.

GOETTLE vs. SAGE,
Oct. 17, 1887.

All above cases may be found in 9, Cent. Rep.

To properly commemorate the removal of The Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania to its new building, 136 and 138 South

Fourth street, Mr. George A. Crowell, the president, has had made in bronze a fac-simile of the first seal of the company, which was in use in 1794. It makes a beautiful paper-weight, and the REAL ESTATE RECORD feels justly proud in being the recipient of so valuable and interesting a souvenir.

Removal of L. S. Graves & Son.

Messrs. L. S. Graves & Son, the elevator builders of New York and Rochester, announce the removal of their New York office to 92 and 94 Liberty street. Extensive additions have recently been made to their works, and the firm is now in better shape than ever to fill all orders with promptness and despatch. If you want an elevator, it will certainly be to your interest to consult L. S. Graves & Son, before ordering.

The Lombard Investment Company Removes.

The Lombard Investment Company has removed to its new offices in the Bullitt building, 131-143 South Fourth street. The company inaugurates the present year with the handsome addition of $200,000 to its guaranteed fund for the security of its investors, making a grand total of $2,500,000, which is practically just that much hard cash securely fastened as collateral, guaranteeing the payment of both the principal and interest of its popular six per cent. first mortgage bonds, which are offered to investors in sums of $250 to $20,000 at par, with accrued interest. The business interests of the Lombard Investment Company is in the hands of a board of directors composed of men prominent in banking and business circles, and whose presence alone is not only indicative of the business integrity and financial strength of the company, but carries with it an assurance of safety and security, which is after all, of vast more importance than the interest allowed. The Directory includes Mr. George Burnham, of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Mr. Wm. B. Bement of the Industrial Iron Works; Mr. George Philler, president of the First National Bank; Mr. George M. Frontman, president of the Central National Bank, and Mr. William McGeorge, jr., attorney-at-law, who is the president.

PORTLAND cement is now made by means of an oven which exposes the powdered raw material directly to the action of a flame of gas. The ordinary process is to grind the chalk or lime and clay thoroughly together, mix with water and turn it out into bricks. Then partially burn it and grind it into fine powder. The weak point of this process is the danger of mixing the cement with ashes from the coke. The new process avoids this danger by burning the material with a gas flame not in contact with coke. This is done by constructing an oven of fire clay pipes in an undulating line. The gas generator is placed at the side of these pipes and the coke is burned upon a grate through which super-heated steam is blown. The steam is decomposed, forming with the flame a mixture of hydrogen with the various hydrocarbons and carbonic oxide. As the raw powder falls into a tube built to receive it, it is met by a blast of air rushing forward, mixed with gas, and is carried forward by the wind and flames through the pipe work. The dust then gradually falls to the receptacles prepared for it, free from any impurities. It has a tensile resistance under this process sixty per cent. greater than the old make.

The U. S. Now Girdled with Rails.

The completion of the California & Oregon Railroad throws a railroad girdle around the United States, making a circuit of at least 8,000 miles. Starting from Washington, for instance, the tourist may travel north to Boston. From there he will go north through New Hampshire and Vermont across the Green Mountains, and thence swing to the westward by Albany and Saratoga on to Buffalo. Thence the Michigan Central will take him along the line of the lakes west to Chicago. From this point he will go on northwest to St. Paul. Thence the Northern Pacific will carry him to the Pacific coast, coming out at Tacoma, the most westerly point on the northern route. From Tacoma he will start on the southern section of the route, going down to Portland on a branch of the Northern Pacific, and thence over the new road almost due south to San Francisco. Thence he will keep on down the coast till he reaches the vineyards and fruit groves of Los Angeles and the port of San Diego, the farthest point south. Here our tourist turns his face to the east and goes over the Southern Pacific road through Texas to New Orleans, thence following the coast range back to Washington, the point of departure. All this vast system of railroad building has been commenced and carried to completion within the memory of living readers.—Chicago Tribune.

Wilson Eyre, 506 Walnut street, has drawn the plans for an irregularly built house for C. H. Davis, Eighteenth and Hamilton streets. The construction will be of stone, half-timber work, and brick paneling. The house will be built at Wayne, Pa., and will cost, including lot, $10,000. Wendell & Smith are the builders.

Brown & Day, 1430 South Penn Square, have the drawings for two houses, on the north side of Pine street, Nos. 1721 and 23, for Mr. Alan H. Reed, of Jacob Reed's Sons, well under way, and expect to be ready for estimates in a few days. They will be four-story front buildings and three-story back buildings, with basement kitchens. Mr. Reed, it is understood, will live in one house himself, and will rent the other. The general style will be Colonial rather freely treated. Further particulars later on.

William E. Dobbins, Broad near Vine, is now attending to his father's business, at the above location, as well as work of his own, which is principally building at Ashbourne station, on the North Penn. Railroad. Many handsome houses have been built by him at that place, and he contemplates the erection of several stone houses on Montgomery avenue, a street which he opened. They will be of stone with all the modern improvements, including gas. Two large rows of houses will also be erected in this city in the spring. Much of this work is in too indefinite a state to give any further information.

Brian & Godwin, 1413 Filbert street, are making the drawings for a monument to be put up on the battle field of Gettysburg. It will be of polished granite. Also a two-and-a-half story frame cottage for R. M. McGuffin, M. D., at Bramwell, W. Va. The roofing will be with Cortright's metallic tiles. Cost about $3,000. An old brick mill, at Hope above Somerset, will be altered into three three-story dwellings. The drug store on the north-east corner of Thirteenth and Green streets will be used by I. H. Sulzbach as an addition to his store. The alterations will accord with the rest of the work designed by these gentlemen. Samuel L. Pugh has the contract.

Willis P. Hale, 917 Chestnut street, is the architect of the building to occupy the recent site of the Commercial hotel on the south side of Market street above Eighth. The new structure will have a frontage of 92 feet, and a depth of 271 feet. The height will be six stories; in the centre it will be run to a height of seven stories. There will also be a basement and a sub-basement. Iron will be used for the first two, and above that English red stone with red terra cotta trimmings and a terra cotta cornice. The building will be of mill construction, all of the timbers showing. The cost will be about $300,000. This improvement will be the handsomest ever erected on that street, both in point of architecture and construction. Mr. Hale has prepared plans, and on Thursday next the contract will be let for the erection of a new office building on the site of the old Temple Theatre. It is to have a frontage of 101 feet 4 inches on Chestnut street, and extend back 220 feet to Jayne street. The front of the new building will have a base nine feet high of polished red granite, above which the front will be composed of Indiana limestone, with red granite trimmings. The first story will be fifty feet high, and will be used, it is said, for office purposes by the Commonwealth Title & Trust Company, The Union Trust and the Chestnut Street Bank. Its cost will be about $300,000. Particulars are very meagre, as every one connected with the operation refuses to talk.

E. W. Thorne, 14 S. Broad street, has just completed the plans, etc., for a $3,000 frame cottage at Rutledge, Delaware county, Pa., this being the twenty-fourth plan he has finished for this town. This house is for Mr. Louis Waeschle, and contains a square reception hall, a two-story open stairs, four rooms first floor, four chambers and a bath room second floor, three chambers and tank room, third floor; and ample closets throughout. A back stairs to second floor, two open fireplaces, and to have a portable heater and brick-stove range, and full plumbing and gas fitting. There is one bay, and an octagonal projection, and two porches. The design is modern; a rubble stone base, a shingled belt, and all gables and sides above tops of second story windows are shingled; other outer walls covered with bevel siding, with plank belts. All roofs slate. The stairs are of hard wood. Bath room hard wood finish, and other interior finish clear white pine finished in natural wood. Contract to be let by owner. Also plans nearing completion for a $2,600 frame cottage for Mr. James G. Downward, Coatesville, Chester county, Pa. This house contains nine rooms, a tank and storage rooms, besides a bath, room; open stairs, two bays, two porches, a heater, range, and full plumbing. Weatherboarded and shingled sides and gables, slate roofs, stone base, three mantels, two fireplaces, pantry, dresser, china closet, and ample closets. Two sets sliding doors and large reception hall. The designs are modern and special with the architect. Mr. Thorne has begun other plans, etc., that will be reported later.

VOL. III.—No. 6.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1888.

PRICE 15 CENTS

Grant Memorial Competition.

1. The Grant Monument Association invites artists, sculptors and architects, under the conditions hereinafter stated, to submit designs for the Monument or Memorial Building to be erected at Riverside Park, in the City of New York, over the tomb of General Grant.

2. The total cost of the completed structure cannot at present be definitely fixed, but as it is hoped that the funds of the Association may be largely increased within the present year, it is suggested that designs be submitted based upon an estimated expenditure of five hundred thousand dollars. Should a larger sum be hereafter contributed, the surplus may be expended in additional ornamentation and decoration, and suggestions embodying such a possibility should accompany the designs.

3. To secure the most imposing and effective results, it is suggested that the designs should combine architecture and sculpture, and that the material to be used should be granite only or in combination with metal.

4. The Association will be aided in the selection of the best designs by eminent experts, none of whom shall be competitors or interested in the execution of the work.

5. Each set of designs submitted should be drawn to a uniform scale of one-quarter of an inch to the foot, and should consist of not less than two nor more than four geometric elevations, a plan of each story or division, one or two vertical sections through the centre of the monument, and one perspective view correctly projected.

6. All the drawings are to be made in lines with India ink and the drawing pens, or simply shaded in Ink. No other coloring will be allowed, and no figures, landscape, background or foreground, are to be shown in either the geometrical or perspective drawings.

7. None of the drawings are to be framed, glazed or even mounted upon a cardboard, but are to be put up flat in a portfolio, and not more than one complete set of designs is to be placed in a portfolio.

8. To aid in illustrating any figure or bas-relief shown in a design, models of such, made with plain, untinted plaster of Paris, may accompany any design. Such models must be made correctly to a uniform scale of one inch to one foot, and simply illustrate any figure or bas-relief shown in the design. Competitors may also, at their option, submit similar plaster models of the entire structure at a scale of one-quarter of an inch. Models must be securely packed in a case and marked as hereinafter mentioned.

9. Each drawing or model is to be distinguished or marked by a motto or cipher, and no other handwriting or mark of any sort is to be put on them. A sealed envelope, bearing a similar cipher or motto, is to contain the name and address of the author of the design, and he may enclose with it any information in regard to his training, experience or professional position, and his qualifications for carrying out the designs necessary to the execution of the work, or for conducting the work itself, whether for the architectural portion or the sculpture to a conclusion, or for both, which he may desire to bring to the notice of the committee.

10. A printed or type-written description of the proposed work, its materials and mode of construction, accompanied with a detailed estimate of its entire cost complete (the correctness of which estimate to the satisfaction of the committee is to be proved and guaranteed before the final adoption of the design), is to be sent with each set of designs, the said description being presented in plain black and white, without any signatures, signs, sketches, or illustrations interspersed, but merely marked with the cipher or motto corresponding to that on the design it describes.

11. All designs, bas-relief models and accompanying descriptions, expressage paid, must be delivered at the office of the Grant Monumental Association, ——— street, New York City, at or before 12 o'clock, November 1, 1888, to which date the time for submitting designs has been extended.

12. The association will select from among the whole number of designs submitted to them the five best and most meritorious, and classify them as first, second, third, fourth and fifth.

13. The conditions as regards the estimate given for the proposed work having first, however, been satisfactorily complied with, the Committee will award a premium of $1,500 to the first, of $1,000 to the second, of $500 to the third, of $300 to the fourth, and of $200 to the fifth, whereupon the said designs shall become absolutely the property of the Association, and no allowance or payment will be made for any other design than these five accepted competitions.

14. If the Committee do not consider any of the designs submitted suitable and appropriate to the purpose of the monument, they may institute a second competition which may, at their option, be limited to the five accepted competitors.

15. In the event of inviting a new competition, none of the designs submitted, awarded prizes or otherwise, will be shown to any other competitor or to the public.

16. In case of all rejected drawings, competitors will be permitted to withdraw their offerings as soon as the Association has made its selection.

17. Each competitor shall state in his letter accompanying his design what further remuneration he would expect for furnishing all details and superintending the work, should his design be adopted and the Committee choose to employ him.

18. This Association will not assume any responsibility for the safe keeping, loss, or injury or safe return of any designs, plans or models sent to them or while in their custody, although all proper care will be taken in every case of the plans, designs and models entrusted to them, and they will be held subject to the demand of the individual competitors. The fact of engaging in this or any subsequent competition is considered as a waiver of all claims for reward or damages against the Grant Monument Association, except as to claims for the prizes already referred to above.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 13, 1888.

DURING the past month New York permits have been falling off. This is largely due to cold weather.

THE Western people are laughing at the railroad fight in the West, and do not feel sorry that the railroad companies are losing $33,000 per day in freights, as is estimated.

A FEW years ago a boy was working in a Philadelphia bookstore at a dollar and twenty-five cents a week. Last week he put his hand in his pocket and bought out Hood, Bonbright & Co.

THERE is some doubt expressed by lumber manufacturers whether last season's prices can be maintained this year. A much larger supply of lumber has reached this market this winter than for many years.

A GREAT deal of lumber has been coming into Eastern markets from the South this winter, and Philadelphia dealers are making arrangements to deal in Southern woods of all kinds more largely.

BUILDERS will do well to make note of the fact that Puget Sound shingles are coming into Eastern markets. They sell at $5.25 per thousand in Ohio. They pass for red wood and sell at prices obtained for shingles cut from real red wood. They come over the Northern Pacific.

It begins to look as though the working men engaged in the building trades of Philadelphia were inclined to take the conservative view of things, and make as little trouble for their employers as possible. This will be wise for many reasons. Philadelphia employers are as willing and as anxious as any class of employers in the country to pay their workmen the highest wages going.

BUILDERS intend to make quite liberal use of Southern lumber this season. One day last week over one million feet arrived from the South. The weekly arrivals are larger than usual. The retailers throughout the city are selling a great deal of lumber for immediate use, and a little looking around shows that there is a great deal of inside work going on. Hard woods are coming into more general use among the finer class of residences, and soft woods are being more largely used for interior finish in common houses.

LAST week business amounting to \$93,50 was transacted in thirty-eight cities against \$100 worth of business for same week last year. This is a good showing considering all the drawbacks. There were 234 failures, against 280 for same week last year. So far this year there are 49 failures less than for same time last year. The commercial papers tell us that there is extreme ease in the money market, call loans are 2 to 3 per cent., time money is  $4\frac{1}{2}\%$ . Money is plenty East and West. In Chicago there is an accumulation in the hands of lenders. This is regarded by a good many as an unfavorable symptom, and is regarded as an evidence of a declining demand, growing out of lessened commercial and manufacturing activity. This is partly true, but not to the extent that money-lenders imagine. There is an inflow of money from interior points to the Atlantic Coast, and this abundance will probably, as it usually does, stimulate speculative dealings, and to that extent give an upward tendency to prices. There is, however, no use borrowing trouble upon this score. The general opinion among traders and manufacturers is, that the volume of money in circulation and in bank is sufficient to meet all demands when demands are made. A scarcity of money would certainly react on the building interests, but so far the contracts entered into show that there are no fears entertained by builders or investors in building operations as to the supply of money for all legitimate operations.

WHICH way is the anthracite strike likely to go? Go on, is just now the most likely direction. The General Executive Committee clearly understand what failure involves. They do not care to play the role in the East which Martin Irons played in the West. Their dignity is at stake, to say nothing of the credit of their organizations. Apart from what either side may say, it is a plain case that the Reading Railroad people propose to down the Knights of Labor. The only safety of the Knights is in bringing the entire Wyoming region out, and setting up a howl from every factory, furnace, stove and range in the New England and Middle States. If the stones of Rome could rise in mutiny, the ranges of Pennsylvania could manage to make a good deal of disturbance. Mr. Corbin will not give in nor give up. There are important stock-jobbing operations behind the strike. The programme is to force Reading Railroad stocks down to the bottom. When those who control the Reading stocks concluded to let those stocks go two or three weeks ago, Mr. Corbin smiled and said "all right." The stock manipulators soon saw into it, and from that day to this they have been sustaining the stock. About the quickest way to settle the strike is to let the stock go down as low as it will, so that a few of the inside parties can load up heavily, and there will be then no further motive to use the miners as a cat's paw to depress Reading securities.

THE view taken by this paper two or three weeks ago concerning the advisability of using more iron in our larger public buildings, is not shared by some architects here and elsewhere, who express a preference for interior brick walls instead. The question is an open one, and will bear a little investigation.

A NUMBER of builders have recently expressed the opinion that the future course of real estate in the outlying sections of the city will depend very largely upon the outcome of the rapid transit schemes which at one time or another have been considered. Just at present there is no well devised scheme under consideration. Our expansion of rapid transit facilities is too much of the patchwork order. We are following the expansion of population rather than anticipating it. This is a safe course but not as wise a one as could be devised. There is a growth in Philadelphia which no ordinary influences can arrest, and it is only a question of time when sections not far remote from street or steam cars will be thickly populated. The necessity for more expeditious travelling has not assumed the dimensions which will invite capital. There are so many profitable avenues into which capital can pour, that schemes of enormous magnitude are permitted to await their turn. A year or two ago capitalists were ready. It is to be doubted whether schemes that were favorably entertained then would be entertained just at this time. Yet for all this progress will be made. One of the latest schemes is that of the Rapid Transit Electric Railroad Company recently incorporated. The road will be a surface one and will run from Fifth and Minor Streets to Twentieth and Allegheny Avenue. The scheme is under the control of capitalists who are able to carry it to successful completion. There is greater need for speed than for additional lines, but no surface roads will allow of the necessary saving of time.

THE lists of permits in cities throughout the country in mid-winter shows that a great deal of work is projected. As compared to a year ago the number of permits and the volume of money they represent is considerably greater. The improvement is not confined to any one section. There is a greater increase in the number of public buildings and manufactories. In the northwest there are now seven hundred country elevators, and over one hundred are now under construction. In the Southern States there is a vast amount of business projected and under way. The various lumber journals speak of a great deal of inquiry at this time for spring requirements. The iron and steel mills show a similar condition of things. There is a growth of planing mill and saw mill capacity, both North and South. With every year's increase in construction of all kinds, there are stronger assurances of a steadiness of demand. In order to illustrate the importance of this fact, it is only necessary to refer to what the railroad system of the country requires for permanent annual additions in rails. It is carefully estimated that 600,000 tons of steel rails will be needed from this out to supply repairing requirements. A few years ago less than one million tons was the total production. The same reasoning applies to house construction. With the enormous increase in the number of houses, manufactures, etc., comes an increased demand for repairing materials of one kind or another. By extending this application it is easy to see that manufacturing activity will be more permanent and less subject to fluctuations and ups and downs, that labor will have more steady employment. These two facts go to show that there will be a downward tendency in the cost of material on account of the greater uniformity of demand.

At last we have what is passed off as an authoritative estimate of the stumpage of the Northwest and the South. That of the Northwest is put at 150,000,000,000 feet. The Southern stumpage is estimated at 240,000,000,000. At the present rate of consumption, it is estimated that the white pine of the North will be exhausted in fifteen years. If the duration of the lumber supply, according to present estimates, is correct, it will result in the invention of substitutes of some kind or another. It may be said at once that there is no possible substitute for lumber,—that there is no material that can be had that will answer the same purposes and be produced as cheaply. Inventive talent does not accept such a possibility. This is an age of substitution of cheaper things to do the service of dearer things and do them as well. The diminution of the lumber supply, concerning which so much is said, but as yet not felt either in supply or price, is already directing the attention of inventive talent into the field which is opening up, and ere long we will hear of lumber substitutes. The furniture manufacturers and the users of wood generally have been gradually adopting cheaper kinds of wood and making them do the service of better woods with success. Several schemes have been tried to find substitutes for brick, but none of them have been able to make inroads upon the brick industry. Paper is being made to answer a multitude of new requirements. The abundance of material in the United States has made us a nation of wasters.

A NUMBER of Chicago builders and brick manufacturers recently visited Purington Station, near Chicago, to witness the burning of an experimental kiln of two hundred thousand brick with crude oil. The owner, Mr. Purington, uses nothing but the waste from which naphtha has been extracted. The oil is piped directly from the car tanks, and is fed into the arches through a two-inch gas pipe. Two kinds of burners were tested, one of which is covered by a patent and sold for one hundred and fifty dollars, the other being a simple improvised device upon which the most exacting inventor could find nothing to lay claim for originality. The work accomplished by both was equally good. The arches were filled with a solid mass of flame, which burned with surprising steadiness. The degree of heat was under the complete control of the operator, who, by turning a hand cock, could increase or diminish the flame in any arch. This particular kiln was finished in sixty hours, about one-third of the time occupied by the prevailing method. In the opinion of the experts present the result was satisfactory in every respect, although more will be known when the kiln has cooled off and been carefully examined. The oil used costs only eighty cents a barrel, and can be had in almost inexhaustible quantities. With this process one man can handle with ease the largest kiln of brick, instead of seven or eight as are now required. No change is required in the construction of the kiln; there are no expensive fittings and absolutely no danger. It is estimated that the introduction of this method will lessen the cost of burning brick fully 33½ per cent. Mr. Purington will shortly submit a full report of the result to the Brick Manufacturers' Association.

THERE are few things the Norwegians can instruct us in, but one of the things in which they can instruct us is how to lay brick in frosty weather. The trick lies in the mixing of the mortar. Greater or smaller quantities of unslaked lime are used according to the coldness of the weather. The bricks used must be kept under cover. Those that have been exposed are not used.

WE have consulted with a few of the leading builders concerning the summer programme. Calculations have been pretty thoroughly made, and the intentions are about these, that if there is no building strike, no shorter hours or longer pay, no advance in the cost of material, there will be about as much house building done as last year. In regard to the building of manufactories, the calculation is to expand existing mills and factories rather than build many new ones. In regard to construction in some dozen or fifteen towns near the city, it is expected that there will be a good many small shops and factories built. Norristown will be improved; Chester, York, Harrisburg, and some smaller towns within those limits will feel the manufacturing impetus. Country builders are asking for quotations on lumber, and will place their orders very early in the season. Nails have advanced about ten cents per keg, and quotations today for car load lots are $2, small lots $2.10, according to the decision of the Atlantic States Association at the Continental Hotel last week.

ALL sorts of calculations, good and bad, are being made by builders, manufacturers and merchants regarding the business probabilities for the coming season. There is no reason why business should not be good. It really makes but little odds what sort of a speech Bismarck may make, or how much railway managers in the Northwest may cut rates, or even, for that matter, how many trusts may spring up, as long as the producing and earning capacity of the country remains at what it is. The people are unnecessarily frightened at trusts. These trusts may want to be trusted before many years. One thing is certain, they will be watched by "Uncle Sam." The "old man" is not so sleepy as they imagine, and if it is really necessary to get after them he will rub on some liniment and go. The railroad companies have discovered that the old fellow knows how to box their ears when they need it. The free traders would like to open our ports to foreign products, but they, too, will hear from him in time. The old man has had independent notions for a long time back. As to other threatened evils, he will meet them when the time comes.

A FIRM of very prominent builders in Philadelphia have been employed by New York capitalists to construct a large building in that city. Their fame is due to the Bullitt building, and it is certainly a complement, but a most deserved one, to receive a call from New York to erect an elegant structure there. Philadelphia builders have as good a right to national fame as Philadelphia lawyers, and we are glad to see that a New York syndicate has been observant enough to discover deserving talent in our city. Buildings like the Bullitt building, the Brown Brothers' building, and others of that stamp, will do very much to advertise Philadelphia builders. They have no better buildings in New York City. There are larger ones and more pretentious ones, but none that are better built. Other New York capitalists might with safety look over the list of Philadelphia builders before placing their contracts. They will find themselves in safe hands, and with roofs over them that will not be in danger of dropping in on them.

Henry J. Brooks, 1845 North Twentieth street, has purchased ground at Lawnton, on the North Penn Railroad, and intends to erect a house there in the spring.

The Peterson Estate will rebuild Adolph Heller's store, at the northeast corner of Eighth and Arch streets. Plans have been submitted but nothing definite has been decided upon as yet.

The lot bounded by Third, Cambria and Euston avenue, 435 feet front by 210 feet deep, has been sold to H. W. Bowers & Son for $33,000. Thirty three-story and thirty-five two-story dwellings will be built there. W. Frederick Snyder consummated the sale.

J. S. Keen will occupy the building to be erected on the present site of the Black Bear Hotel, on Third street near Race. The new structure will run back to St. John street, a distance of over two hundred and seventy-five feet. The frontage will be one hundred and three feet. The height will be four stories. $40,000 was the price paid for the old buildings by W. H. Sutterlee.

Under the appropriations made by City Councils under date of December 31st, 1887, the Board of Prison Inspectors of the Philadelphia County Prison intend to contract at once, bids to be in by the 17th of February, for the following work: The completion of the outer wall, construction of the guard house and the central rotunda and library building. This does not include the granolithic pavements, doors, plumbing and heating appliances, electric bells, lighting, etc. Wilson Brothers, 435 Chestnut street, will give further information.

Architects' Notes.

Romulo Vasquez, of Holmesburg, has finished the plans for a frame cottage to cost $3,000 for Samuel Reiter, on Old Mill street, that place. The contracts have not been let.

Charles Balderston, 212 S. Third street, is working on the drawings of several very handsome cottages, one at Llanwellyn, on the P. W. & B. Railroad, to cost about $6,000. Another cottage is for C. H. Fowler, of Gloucester, N. J., to cost $3,000. A. G. Murphy will build a summer residence at Mount Desert, Maine, which will cost $2,000.

Ralph S. Townsend, 101st street and 10th avenue, New York City, has furnished the plans for the "Bijou Apartment Company," for Frank M. Weiler, president. The building to be erected on the northwest corner of Fifty-sixth street and Park avenue, which is to be seven stories high with basement, and to be built of brick, stone and terra cotta. The building is to be fire proof. J. E. & A. L. Pennock, 305 Walnut street, this city, have the contract.

Wilson Brothers, 435 Chestnut street, have finished the drawings for the Edison Electric Light Company's new building, to be erected on Sansom street, above Ninth. The building will be of brick, six stories high, and entirely fire proof. The frontage is to be 67 feet 8 inches and the depth 97 feet 8 inches.

The same architects report that the H. B. Smith Machine Company has the contract for the ventilating, and the Philadelphia Exhaust Ventilating Company the contract for the heating of the Drexel building. The system will be the most complete ever introduced in any building.

Charles Balderston, 212 south Third street, has just completed the plans for Croft & Allen's five-story brick factory, at Thirty-third and Market streets. The entire lot, triangular in shape, will be occupied by the main building, boiler house and vaults. The main building to be five stories high, and the boiler house three stories high, inclusive of basements. The style of construction throughout the main building and boiler house will be that known as slow burning. The facings of the walls to be of stretcher brick, and the towers to be ornamented with moulded bricks. The interior of the building will be fitted up with all the modern appliances. Contracts have not been let.

Brown & Day, 1430 South Penn Square, are working on the drawings for a large stone house with a tower, at Eighteenth and Providence avenue, Chester, Pa. for B. Frank Beatty. The plans provide for an ample house with a large central staircase hall, with entrances to the principal rooms, all to be fitted in hard woods supplied with the latest modern conveniences. Attached to the house will be a conservatory, to be provided with a hot water apparatus. The work has so far progressed that estimates will be received in a few days, yet it is probable that no general contract for the work will be made. A pair of handsome offices have been rented by this firm in the new building, 1305 Arch street, where they will remove about March first. Owing to their increasing business their present quarters are entirely too cramped.

J. W. B. Fry, 119 S. Fourth street, has drawn the plans for Henry G. Kulp, of Pottstown, Pa., for a pair of brick and frame houses at that place. The base is of Chester County brown-stone to the first story windows, the balance, brick and frame. The general style of architecture is Queen Anne. The buildings will be finished about April. Contracts for stairs and mantels and probably the electric work have not been let. The cost will be $12,000. Also a single house for Jacob Fegely, of Pottstown, which is of similar construction, only considerably larger and much finer in finish. No contracts for the interior work have been let. The house will be heated by steam and lighted by electricity, and all of the modern improvements will be added. Especial attention will be given to the hall and stairway. The house will not be completed until June.

T. Frank Miller, 615 Walnut street, has finished the plans for a 3-story stone house in the old English style for Robert H. Welch, at Upsal station, Germantown. Especial attention will be given to the interior. Hard woods, electric and sanitary appliances will tend to make this residence one of the most complete in that section of the country. There will be fourteen rooms, finished in oak, ash, cypress and yellow pine. No contracts have been let. Also a house for Charles W. Bolton, at Berlin, N. J. to cost $5,000. Work will commence about April 1st. A. Wilson Norris, the State auditor of Pennsylvania, will build, from Mr. Miller's plans, two stone and brick dwellings with handsome arched fronts and special interior work. These houses will be erected at Louisville, Ky. None of the above have been contracted for. Work will be started on Francis Bond's house at Folsom about the middle of April.

Harrison Albright, 508 Walnut street, has completed the plans for a stone church at the corner of Fourth and Locust streets, at Columbia, Pa., for the Presbyterian denomination of that place. The building is one story high, with a frontage of 66 feet and a depth of 140 feet. The architecture is Romanesque. The walls will be of Indiana limestone, with trimmings of Wyoming Valley blue stone. The construction is to be of exposed timber of yellow pine. The roof will be covered with slate: seating capacity of the church, five hundred; gallery, two hundred. The school and church are separated by glass partitions with doors sliding into floor. The first floor also contains pastor's study, church parlor and libraries. The basement contains fair room, dining room, kitchen and pantries. Steam will be used for heating purposes. Considerable stained glass will also be used. A new organ will be placed in the left. Cost of church $30,000.

We issued the first positive and binding guarantee ever given with Roofing Plates.

We began to stamp every sheet of our "Gibbertson's Old Method" and "Camaret" guaranteed Roofing Plates with brand and trademark, and the name of the inventor, and also the name and sale of "Waters" of the "Gibbertson's Old Method."

1886

We improved the coating of the "Camaret."

1887

We ceased the importation and sale of the "Waters" of the "Camaret." We had every box of both the above brands, stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

1888

We have arranged to still further protect the interests of those desiring the best Roofing Plates by having every box of the above brands, marked with ACTUAL net weight of the plates in same.

A consideration of the above Five Steps will show how unjust it is to class other plates as equal to the above brands.

As the "Gibbertson's Old Method" weighs from 6 to 10 per cent. more than any other Dipped Plate, it is impossible for us to pay extra cost, duty and freight, and yet offer same, in competition with lighter plates.

Nor can plates, of which the waters are procurable, be classed or placed in competition with ours.

ARCHITECTURAL DISPLAY

at the Fifty-eighth Annual Exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.

Among the prominent features of this year's exhibition are the architectural drawings, which include designs both in pen-and-ink and water-color. As a rule visitors pass almost everything that savors of technique, and devote their time and criticism to the paintings on display. In this exhibition, however, the efforts of our architects are being rewarded with much flattering attention, as great interest is expressed in this part of the exhibition by other than professional people, who evince a desire to learn what is being done. This interest is no doubt an outgrowth of the present popular desire for novelty. Good work and merit is recognized by our people notwithstanding their former limited opportunity to realize the possibilities of genius in the construction of buildings, and the substantial buildings now in course of construction or intended to be erected, together with those that have been completed, must have a still greater influence in establishing among our people a craving for a still higher standard of architectural beauty. It is very evident that the former popularity, of plain fronts like that of plain clothes, has become a thing of the past, and their resurrection from well merited oblivion will require the efforts of more old fogies than can be found even in Philadelphia. Yet it is possible in the mad chase for novelties that much harm may be done. Colonial, Corinthian, Romanesque, Dutch and old English are called into use, and frequently to the detriment of building, architect and owner. The Queen Anne variety is made to do penance for many of the sins of omission and commission of architects, and over-building is the result. This fault cannot be found with the drawings in this year's exhibition, for while they are principally from the hands of the younger men, yet they all show careful, conscientious work and study and great practical ability. Nearly all of the exhibitors are Philadelphians, and many of them are members of the American Institute of Architects, and graduates of the various schools and colleges devoted to the study of architecture.

It would be an injustice not to mention the T-Square Club, a valuable architectural Society, meeting for the purpose of advancing the profession, both in an artistic and social manner. At each meeting a subject is given for competition, to be completed and presented at the next meeting, when the award is made. Some of the results of these competitions are among the present architectural exhibits. They are a

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 20, 1888.

THE Architectural League held a very interesting meeting in New York, on February 6th.

THE Western Pennsylvania Association of Architects showed at its January meeting in Pittsburgh, that it is in a very healthy condition.

* THE Slate Producers' Exchange, of Northampton County, will continue last year's wages, excepting an advance of ten cents per square on 11's, 12's and by 18's by 22.

If Philadelphia proposes to surpass New York City in the magnitude of its commercial and manufacturing operations, it is absolutely necessary that the mud bars in the center of the river be removed. Mr. Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said that the presence of the islands is an absolute bar to the growth of the commerce of Philadelphia, and that it is not possible to construct wharves within a mile of the center of the city large enough to admit boats more than half the size of those that find wharfage at New York and other ports. A joint resolution was reported in the House last Friday, authorizing the appointment of a board of three engineers to see how these islands affected Philadelphia commerce. The question now is who shall remove them—the State, the National Government, or individual enterprise?

WITH the assistance of fires during the past two years, Arch Street is beginning to make a respectable appearance. There are still too many old houses on that street that were built when the gray-headed storekeepers doing business on it were boys. Property there could be made double its present value. There is need of buildings for both office and manufacturing purposes. The owners of the private dwellings have been served with notices to quit by the spirit of enterprise which is fighting its way, foot by foot, up toward Broad street. A few more good fires will do a great deal to push the work. Eighth and Arch will present a much more creditable appearance next winter than this winter. Three-story dwellings have no business in that locality.

THE problem of cheap homes is one of the latest which has engaged the attention of capitalists. There is no class of houses which pays better or which is more regularly occupied than the cheaper and, in fact, cheapest class of houses. The steady employment of the working classes throughout the country at good wages during the past two or three years, has made a demand for cheap houses, which has of late attracted the attention of builders and capitalists, and the only question now is how can large investments be made in the most advantageous way. There are a number of difficulties in the way of the large investor in this direction. No very large number of houses can be built in one locality. The collection of rents and the seeking of tenants has to be looked after by some one specially employed for that purpose. In order to expend a large sum of money, houses have to be built in a good many localities, mostly in manufacturing centers. There would be more of this kind of building done if five hundred or one thousand houses could be built in a block, but this is not practicable. If the anthracite coal miners, for instance, were paid somewhere near the value of their labor, and were not indirectly obliged to deal at cut-throat company stores, there would be a demand in a short time for twenty or thirty thousand houses, and not one less, in the great coal fields of Eastern Pennsylvania, where over one hundred thousand miners and employees are obliged to live in houses which are barely fit for occupancy. That there is need of more small house-building is a fact apparent to any one who is familiar with conditions in many and most of our manufacturing centres.

The housing which the bulk of our working people are obliged to put up with was based upon industrial conditions twenty or thirty years ago, and has very little reference to the present vastly expanded industrial requirements. In a score or more of cities working people are crowded together, courts and alleys are densely populated, sanitary regulations are largely absent, health conditions are not observed, and the increase of populations is yearly making matters worse. Our shops, mills and factories are built with an entirely different conception. In the first place the shops and mills of to-day are as palaces to hovels with reference to the workshops of the past. The buildings are mostly strong, with high ceilings, with fire escapes, with automatic sprinklers, with electric lights, and in many New England cities and towns they are surrounded with flower beds, and in some cases fountains, which make these great houses of work beautiful and attractive. This is right. Work is hard enough at best, and the lives of those who are compelled to endure the drudgery and confinement of hard labor should be made as attractive as possible.

It is time, therefore, but the word therefore is not necessary, that a change should be made, that a departure should be taken, that our houses where our work-people live should be made fit for occupancy, and not only that, but that they should be made attractive, healthful, roomy, bright and home-like. This may be impossible in our larger cities, where necessities have already an iron grip, but there are possibilities in the newer towns and cities that are springing up everywhere. The Pennsylvania farmers build barns or barn palaces for their stock, hay and fodder, and live in a cramped-up, little, old-fashioned house which their grandfathers lived in. We are giving entirely too much attention to horses, mules and machinery, because they cost money, and too little attention to human beings, because they can be had for nothing. There is an urgent need that the houses of the working people of the future should be built with reference to the requirements that are now urging themselves upon attention. Land is not so scarce that a thousand or two people must be huddled inside of an acre. The distance from the house to the shop can be made in shorter time than years ago. Steam and electricity are coming to our aid. Every house should have its front and side yards where light and air would be abundant, and should have high ceilings and wide windows and the best sanitary appliances. To-day these are not absolute requirements, but they soon will be. It is not making much of a prediction to say that in a few years capital will take hold of this house-building question for working men, and furnish them with homes on reasonable and easy paying terms.

By request we publish the last Mechanics' Lien Law. Considerable interest has already been excited by a suit brought by John Lucas & Co., of this city, which was tried in Common Pleas No. 1, before Judge Allison. The case is practically a test of the new law, and a decision will not be given until Saturday, 25th instant.

An Act Relating to the Lien of Mechanics and Others upon Buildings.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the provisions of the Act of Assembly of June 16th, A. D. 1836, entitled "An Act relating to the lien of mechanics and others upon buildings," and the Act of Assembly of April 16, 1845, entitled "An Act concerning sheriffs' sales and for other purposes," according to the true intent and meaning thereof, shall be construed to include claims for labor done by mechanics and laborers in the erection or construction of a building, as liens are now allowed for material furnished. Provided, That no lien will be allowed for a sum less than ten dollars.

SECTION 2. All buildings and machinery made liable to a mechanics' lien by the laws of this Commonwealth to a contractor or material man, for work done or materials furnished for or about the erection, construction, or repairs thereof, shall also be liable to a mechanics' lien for any work done on said building and machinery by any sub-contractor, mechanic, or laborer. No material man shall have the right to file a lien, unless notice of the amount and character of such claim be given to the owner or reputed owner, his authorized agent or attorney, when the material is delivered on the premises, or within ten days thereafter. Provided, such sub-contractor, mechanic, or laborer shall file his claim within sixty days, setting forth the nature of the work and when the same was done, in the proper county, as other mechanics' liens are filed.

SECTION 3. Where mechanics' liens are filed against the same property by the original contractor, and sub-contractor, mechanic, or laborer, the lien of the mechanic or laborer shall be first paid, and the owner or reputed owner shall be entitled to credit in settlement with the contractor to the extent of the amount paid to satisfy the lien of the mechanic or laborer: Provided, that no building, buildings, or machinery shall be liable, under this act, for an amount greater than the amount named in the original contract for the building of the same.

Approved June 17, 1887.

THE cost of house building, apart from the question of labor, is declining in one direction and advancing in another. Necessary material is declining in price. Better tools and better machinery are gradually bringing about economy in manufacture of material of all kinds going into construction, from the locomotive and rail down to the smallest article used in construction. On the other hand, a variety of costly materials are being introduced, which are considerably enhancing the cost of construction, but this cost is borne by the few who are able to bear it. The modern palaces of the princes of trade and traffic excel in every point of view the finest building of the mediæval ages, and the spirit of competition and emulation is steadily advancing the cost of our finer home, office and manufacturing structures. A generation ago, walls and roofs were the only things thought of in construction; now they are only looked upon as the foundation for fine work.

The Third Annual Convention of the National Association of Builders will be held on the second Tuesday of February, 1889, in the City of Philadelphia. The second annual convention was held on February 7th, 8th and 9th at Cincinnati, Ohio. The present officers of this association are, President, John S. Stevens of Philadelphia; First Vice-President, Edward E. Scribner of St. Paul; Second Vice-President, John J. Tucker of New York; Secretary, William H. Sayward of Boston; Treasurer, George Tapper of Chicago. Quite a number of papers were read, and discussions were had and resolutions passed for future attention. Among the resolutions offered was one by D. W. Purington, of Chicago, relating to uniform size of brick. Mr. George M. Roydhouse, of Philadelphia, offered a resolution:

"WHEREAS, Different branches of mechanics are the principal contractors in different locations, the same being warranted by the general character of the work in such cities; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the secretary of the National Association be requested to gather all possible information on the subject, and report the same to the next National Convention."

A resolution was also offered recommending the National Congress to pass a bill establishing manual schools for mechanics in all cities of a population of one hundred thousand and over.

George W. Prussing of Chicago, Chairman of the Committee on Statistics, read a very interesting report upon the conditions of trade, the hours of labor, rates of wages paid, strikes, &c.

The Committee on Legislative Matters submitted a valuable report upon permanent arbitration, on rules and conditions under which estimates should be submitted by contractors in the building trades, and recommendations for the Executive Committee to consider that are of interest to the building trades. In addition to this, other questions were submitted, namely, rules for estimating work; the apprenticeship system and the uniformity of the lien laws. This report took strong grounds in favor of the establishment of a national system of arbitration. On the subject of uniform contract, Mr. E. E. Scribner of St. Paul, submitted a report proposing the appointment of a committee of three, to act with the Western Association of Architects and the American Institute of Architects. Hon. J. C. Adams of Indianapolis, read a paper on the "Improvements and advances made in brick making." Mr. George R. Phillips of Providence, R. I., read a paper on "plumbing," in which he advocated the industrial education of plumbers' apprentices.

One of the most important questions which came up for discussion was on the rules for estimating work. The result arrived at was that general plans, details, and specifications, when offered for final competitive estimates, should be presented on a scale not less than one-eighth of an inch to the foot, should be done in ink or by some process that will not fade or obliterate, and be complete in every part, and such portion as require a larger scale for a thorough comprehension of what will be demanded should be so presented; specifications should be definite; estimates should not be given to cover an indefinite depth of foundation; foundations which have to go below the depths shown upon plans should be paid for as extra work at prices agreed upon; the specification is to be the guide for estimating, and all demands made by the specification, unless objection be made thereto in writing when bids are submitted, should be covered in the estimate offered; improper demands made by the plans are not to be considered; grouping of special work must be mentioned and placed under appropriate headings; specifications must distinctly state when it is necessary to cut or change the work of one mechanic in the placing of the work of another, then the said cutting should be done by the mechanic whose work is so changed or cut, he being paid therefor by the mechanic whose work makes the said cutting necessary.

Estimates having been received and opened, the lowest invited bidder, whether he be a general or a sub-contractor, should be entitled to the contract, and estimates for changes should only be made by him, unless the said changes involve a complete alteration in the plans, and then the full competition should be again opened. In no case are the two lowest bidders to be called upon to estimate ordinary changes to decide which is entitled to the contract. In case the price estimated for changes should not be satisfactory to the owner, it should be settled by arbitration.

The compensation for the lowest bidders when all bids are refused was settled as follows: For estimates amounting to $5,000 and under, $25; $5,000 to $50,000, $50; over $50,000, $100.

When security is exacted from a contractor a like amount of security is to be required of the owner.

A rule was passed that any member detected in trading on any of the sub-bids, whether they be solicited or unsolicited, would be liable to a forfeiture of membership, censure or suspension.

It was decided that proposals should be opened for work in the presence of general contractors, and that sub-contractors should not be expected to become security for a general contractor, that time when contracts should be completed must be mentioned, and that if there are penalties are to be imposed the facts should be clearly stated, and finally, that if work is completed before a specified time, the owner should be required to pay premium.

The report of the Committee on Statistics, which was referred to the Executive Committee, That the number of hours' work per day varies in the different cities and varies also among the different trades in the same city. While the movement for the establishment of eight hours as a day's work among the mechanical classes has been successful thus far in few localities, and is nowhere established in all trades and manufactures, it is plain that a shortening of hours of employment to less than ten per day is looked upon favorably by the public everywhere, particularly in the north, and this will be one of the legitimate benefits derived by the wage-worker from the introduction of the manifold forms of labor-saving machinery in all departments of industry.

The report of the Committee on Apprentices was adopted. The speeches upon this report were warmly applauded, because they spoke the true American sentiment. One delegate stated that out of 16,000,000 mechanics in the United States only 500,000 are Americans. Some strong words were spoken against the present system of manual education, because it left off where it should begin.

Among the other papers read was one by William Goldie, of Chicago, on "Carpentry" one by J. G. McCarthy, of Chicago, on "Paint." One by E. E. Scribner, of St. Paul, on "Advances and Improvements made in Roofing."

The convention adopted a plan for permanent arbitration, whereby the separate associations of each city should from central organizations with one representative from each trade, and one from among the workmen for the purposes of arbitration of all labor questions.

The following method to take the place of the old apprenticeship system, was adopted: The serving of a regular course of instruction in a mechanical trade school, and graduating therefrom with a certificate of proficiency granted by the same, under rules and regulations approved by a committee of master mechanics, who may unite in the management of the said school. Service for a term of practice with an employer on actual work, this term to be at least one year less than the usual term of apprenticeship, by virtue of the holding of a certificate of proficiency granted by a mechanical trade school. During this service the young man is to be known as a "junior." The completion of the education of the mechanic to be acknowledged on the part of the employer by the issuance of a certificate from the associated builders to which the employer may belong, which shall state that the holder has passed through the prescribed course at the trade school and the term of practice with an employer with satisfaction and credit, and is entitled to be received by all builders as a journeyman.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Matters concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

COURTESY:—A wilful desertion of a wife by a husband must be presumed to have been malicious, and if persisted in for a period of a year or more immediately preceding her death, deprives him, under the act of May 4th, 1855, of his right of courtesy in her real estate, unless he rebuts the presumption by proof that he had reason and lawful cause for his conduct.

BEALOO vs. HAHN.
October 3, 1887.

DOWER:—A widow's dower, after ascertainment by the Orphans' Court, is an estate in the land, and will not, in the absence of express agreement, be destroyed or divested by a sheriff's sale of the land in execution of a judgment for arrears of interest due the widow. There is no identity of interest and principal. The former alone belongs to the widow, the latter to the heirs. A judgment for the interest is in no sense a judgment for the principal or any part of it.

TOSFON vs. SIPE.
October 3, 1887.

FRAUD:—A mere verbal promise by the purchaser of land at a sheriff's sale, to hold it in trust for the defendant, with a right of redemption in the defendant, during a limited period, transfers no interest in the land.

Such a promise is within the statute of frauds—(April 22, 1856).

The violation of such a promise will not convert the purchaser into a trustee ex maleficio.

It seems that inducing persons not to bid at a sheriff's sale who otherwise would have done so, is, in connection with such a promise, a fraud which would raise such a resulting trust, but the evidence to establish it should be clear, explicit, and unequivocal.

KRAFT vs. SMITH.
October 3, 1887.

LANDLORD AND TENANT:—To ascertain the intention of the parties to a contract; all the surrounding facts and circumstances existing at the time the contract was made may be taken into consideration.

Where a lessee has an exclusive right to wash the ore on the premises, and it was not known at the time the lease was executed that ore existed in the land, the lessee has no right to appropriate to his own use the ore accumulated in the washings of the iron ore.

ERWIN vs. HOCIT.
October 3, 1887.

NOTE:—Under the act of April 11, 1848, as well as by the common law, a married woman is not liable upon her judgment note for money borrowed, although it is borrowed for the purpose of improving her separate estate and is actually applied to that purpose.

The sureties in such a judgment note, having been compelled to pay it, are merely subrogated to the rights of the lender.

The lender having relied on the sureties cannot be subrogated to the rights of the mechanics and material men to whom the borrowed money was paid.

SELLERS vs. HEINEBOUGH.
October 17, 1887.

PAROL GIFT OF LAND:—The facts necessary to take a parol gift of land from parent to child out of the Statute of Frauds, must be proved by evidence not only credible but of such weight and directness as to make out the facts beyond doubt.

R. R. CO. vs. KNOWLES.
October 3, 1887.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER:—It is a good defence to an action on a bond given to secure the purchase money on a conveyance by quit claim deed of land supposed to belong to the vendor by virtue of a tax sale to show that through a mutual mistake of parties as to the description; the land purporting to be conveyed was land which in fact had not been sold for taxes, and hence did not belong to the vendor, and consequently there was a failure of consideration for the bond.

GAERLE vs. SAGE.
October 17, 1887.

WILL:—A direction in a will that land be sold on the expiration of seven years from testator's death, operates as a conversion of the land into personalty; and hence the Limitation Act of February 24, 1834, does not apply.

Where the creditors of a testator agreed with the executor to postpone their claims, so as to enable the executor to carry out the intentions of the testator, and this was an advantage to the estate and to the executor personally, the statute of limitation will not be applied to defeat their claims, presented more than six years after the death of the testator.

MCWILLIAMS' APPEAL.
October 3, 1887.

All the above cases may be found in 9, Cent. Rep.

F. R. SHATTUCK,
Attorney at Law,
58 S. Third Street.

It would be too bad if the efforts being made to build an Opera House at Camden, N. J., should prove abortive. But $15,000 of the amount need be raised in Camden, as Philadelphia parties have agreed to furnish the balance. There ought to be found among Camden's 70,000 population, men enough with enterprise enough to make the Opera House project a success, yet it seems doubtful. Wilmington, with its 45,000 population, has a handsome Opera House and supports it, and there are half a dozen towns within a hundred miles of Camden, with not more than half its population, that have or are going to have handsome Opera Houses.

BALTIMORE, MD., claims to have erected over 6,000 new houses this year.

PITTSBURG, PA., boasts of 1704 new buildings for 1887, costing $3,715,070.

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, FEB. 27, 1888.

PHILADELPHIA is not a day too soon in urging for the removal of the islands where a channel ought to be. New York shipping interests are agitating for an elevated circular road that can deliver freight cars at any wharf in the city. The removal of our harbor warts will be the first step to improve our wharf facilities, and their improvement means a general improvement in the value of real estate all along the water front.

OUR readers should bear in mind that the Philadelphia Real Estate Exchange, 531 Chestnut St., has a list of properties to rent, which embraces all sections of the city and suburbs. The list is furnished free on application, and affords a great saving in time and trouble to those who consult it. House hunting is not a pleasurable task, by any means, but much of the usual annoyance can be avoided by the exercise of a little judgment. The would-be renters should first settle upon the location suitable for their business or social convenience. Second, determine upon price per month, or year, together with the size of house required. Third, visit the Exchange, obtain a list of houses to rent with the prices asked, select from the list those which seem to possess the facilities needed—and ninety-nine times out of a hundred, the very house you want is to be found on the list—and in a few hours, at the most, you are able to accomplish what would take you weeks to accomplish, the old way of house hunting.

THE spirit of improvement has set in at last on Market street. It is rather strange that this old thoroughfare has been so long neglected. The completion of the post office opened the way for a class of fine buildings worthy of such a street. Quite a number of building enterprises are now being quietly talked about, and if sites can be purchased at fair figures, it is probable that quite a number of fine business structures will be erected this year and next. A good many firms who have heretofore been content on the right-angle streets, are now looking toward Market street for enlarged accommodations. Very little risk would be involved in the construction of large office and business buildings. Business buildings to accommodate a half dozen, or two dozen business firms for that matter, could be as safely erected as office buildings to accommodate fifty or five hundred office tenants. The land on that street is entirely too valuable, or ought to be too valuable, to permit the old continental style structures to longer disfigure that street. It is safe to say that the floor space on both sides of Market street could be multiplied by 4 if the right kind of new buildings were erected. The rent, or at least the returns to builders, would increase, perhaps not in a corresponding ratio, but sufficiently to make the building of fine structures a deserving enterprise. There are still old rookeries all along from Front to Broad that ought to be cleared out of the way, and seven, eight or ten stories erected. The elevator has abolished stairways, and the tenth story is as valuable as the second for many purposes. One drawback is that a great many of the Market street properties are held by Rip Van Winkles and "gran-nies," who are satisfied with a paltry rent, and who are in danger of going into spasms if called upon to expend five cents for plaster. A new departure must take place on that thoroughfare. Two or three more fine structures will give the start. Even west of Broad there is need of and room for a spirit of enterprise that will transform that street from an old-fashioned country street into a fine metropolitan thoroughfare. Improvements of this kind ought not to be deferred.

Investments of capital in this direction cannot help but prove profitable. All of those who have made improvements within the past few years have realized results that ought to stimulate others to follow in their footsteps.

* AN immense amount of manufacturing is being done in Philadelphia, in out of the way alleys and corners, and in buildings which were not constructed with any eye to the enormous manufacturing requirements of the present day. It is ascertained from the tenants of some of these rookeries that their rents are high, that their accommodations are exceedingly limited, and that they are unnecessarily cramped for room, light, ventilation. There is one way out, and that is through the front door of these places. But manufacturers, big and little, have no other places to go. Builders and investors ought to take a hint. Of course manufacturers desire to be as near the centre of the city as possible, within easy reach of banks, post-offices, express offices and those who deal in the material which they use. A remedy for some of these inconveniences could be found in the erection, perhaps in the vicinity of Race street, of a few fine, well-equipped and especially devised buildings to accommodate these little or big manufacturers. The new building at Tenth and Filbert streets demonstrates what ought to be done. A good many little manufacturers wondered what on earth such an immense building was being put up there for. They now understand fully, and if another such building or a half dozen were furnished, it is reasonable to suppose they would prove good investments. Some fault is to be found with the manufacturers themselves who will stick in their old holes, even if they have to paste paper over the broken panes, and vex their old worn-out boilers in steam raising, until they feel like exploding to get their owners to move out.

THERE is quite an improvement in the demand for fancy brick all over the country. One St. Louis Company made 10,000,000 last year, and had not enough. The eastern demand is improving and capacity is being increased at several yards.

To all appearances it will be some time before the problem of good street paving will be solved in our larger cities. The proper material is wanting. The cost of that which would answer is too high. The old wooden pavement which was tried in some Western cities a few years ago has disappeared. The more recent pavements tried are found suitable enough, but our cities are too deeply in debt to permit of the adoption of any of them. Here and there a mile or two of serviceable pavement can be put down, but it remains for some enterprising inventor to suggest or discover a material which can be used and which will come within the reach of the slim pocket-book of the average city.

BUILDERS like to keep an eye on shingles. The Michigan manufacturers held a meeting the other day at Grand Rapids. From reports made, it appears there were on hand 39,877 of 18 inch, 5,015,000 16 inch, 41,647,000 C. B.'s 18 inch, 3,659,000 C. B.'s 16 inch. The prices are $4.70 to $4.90 at Boston for best; 15 to 20 cents cheaper at New York; i "best" green shingles at mill, $3.40 to $3.65 and $2.30 to $3.50 for C. B.'s. A year ago the association represented 100,000,000 shingles on hand. The stock is now between 85,000,000 and 90,000,000. All members reported encouraging inquiries. A resolution was adopted that the ruling prices be $3.65 for best 18 inch stock, and $2.40 for clear butts, on a basis of 3 cents arbitrary above Grand Rapids. The members professed to believe prices could be advanced by May 1st.

DURING the past three years 21,400 buildings of all kinds were erected in this city. Judging from the way in which transactions in real estate are going, it is probable that for the next year, at least, the full average will be maintained. Builders continue to make quite liberal contracts for supplies. The lumber receipts have been larger than usual during the past two months. Planing mills have quite an amount of business on hand for spring work. A great deal of slate will be ready for next season's consumption. The glass factories are nearly all running full time. Some large contracts have recently been placed for cheap, but neat, gas fixtures. Electricity will be much more largely used in all new houses this season than last, and electric buttons instead of door bells, and electric appliances of all kinds will be more largely used. The electrical supply houses are taking full advantage of the opportunities presented, and are crowding in their devices at prices which builders cannot well refuse.

The following letter and circular in answer to our inquiries in regard to the scheme to utilize the water power of Niagara will explain what is really intended.

BUFFALO BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION.
J. B. Stafford, Pres. P. J. Ferris, Sec.
BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb 17th, 1888.

JOHN N. GALLAGHER,

I enclose you the only circular that has been issued upon the question of "Niagara Water Power." Mr. Stafford informs me that the sum proposed has been subscribed, and I suppose when the money is paid in and the subscribers organized, there will be further circulars giving such information as you desire, which will be sent to you. Our association is not connected with the scheme.

Yours respectfully,

P. J. Ferris, Secretary.

OFFICE OF JAS. B. STAFFORD & BRO.

156 & 158 Pearl street, Buffalo, N. Y.

DEAR SIR:

In reply to your favor recently received, the undersigned beg to say that an effort is being made to raise the sum of ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, for the purpose of offering it to the inventive talent of the world, as a prize for the discovery or invention of the BEST APPLIANCE FOR UTILIZING, IN THE MOST PRACTICABLE MANNER, THE IMMENSE WATER POWER OF NIAGARA RIVER, at or near Buffalo.

Of course, the terms and conditions of awarding the prize will be determined upon and published by the subscribers to the fund when fully organized, and sent to all who make application, and declare their intention of competing for the prize. Half of the $100,000 has already been signed for, and there is no doubt but the balance will be pledged in a few days. It is impossible, until the whole amount is subscribed, and the conditions upon which the prize will be paid are fully defined and settled upon by the subscribers, to give any more information than this.

Yours respectfully,

JAS. B. STAFFORD & BRO.

N. B.—Please note that this does not refer in any way to water power derived from the Falls of Niagara (22 miles from this city), but for a device for utilizing the powerful current of Niagara River, at and near Buffalo.

The use of natural gas on an Indianapolis tile works saves 50 per cent. in cost of fuel, and shortens the time of burning by several hours. By the use of this gas, a greater variety of colors can be given and they are using the most beautiful designs for floors, hearths, mantels, etc. Products of this kind, if thrown east, would no doubt meet with favor. These fine effects are just what are wanted.

Now just a word about southern hardwood. We hear a good deal said about the increased use of it. So it will increase, but not quite so fast as some people count on, nor will its price decline so fast as to drive other and cheaper woods out. The trouble is the Southern mill men work slowly and cannot be rushed. Northern men seeing slow Southern ways, and ox teams doing one-third the work a good span of Northern horses would do, go down—put up a good mill—bring their Northern mill men, and go to work. Soon chills, fever, and malaria with a big M, has boss and men down, and after wrestling with quinine and herbs a season, the entire lot of them clear out and leave their mills to be sold. If malaria and other draw-backs could be exterminated, we would soon have an abundance of Southern hardwood, and cheap wood too, the product of Northern capital and enterprise.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS.

CLAIMS FOR COMPENSATION NOT FORFEITED
IF OWNERS OF LAND DESIGNATED
CERTAIN PARTS THEREOF FOR STREET PURPOSES.

The Supreme Court has decided that notwithstanding the declaration of an owner of a tract of land, who, in order to effect the sale of building lots dedicates a part of his land for street purposes, his claim for compensation against a municipal corporation who enters upon and takes actual possession of the same is not invalidated. The case was in connection with the opening of Brooklyn street. The question involved was as follows:

"Does one who, in making a deed of his land, refers as a boundary to a street laid out but not open, thereby dedicate so much of his land as lies within the street limits to the public, and thus deprive himself of a right to compensation when his land is actually taken?"

Judge Green, in giving the decision, said that as between grantor and grantee the former would certainly have to make good his covenant that there was a street. If a street had been laid out by the grantor over land which he had sold in lots, there would necessarily be an implied covenant that he would open it for the use of the grantee.

"But when a municipal corporation lays out streets over the land of a private citizen, it is not in any sense the act of the owner, and hence there is no necessity for the implication of a covenant against the owner to give his land to the public without compensation, nor even to dedicate it to public use. In making such a grant the public is not in privity with him. His dealing is not with them, but with a private citizen. Whatever may be his obligations to that citizen because of the private contract between them, no analogy requires a similar deduction to be made between the owner and the public."

Lot Buyers.

NOTE.—Many of these lots have been purchased for building purposes, and it might pay to correspond with the purchasers.

Abel Howard, of South Chester, Pa., lot 130x130 feet, cor. Third and Marsh streets, South Chester, $4,000.

Our Record.

1884.—THE FIVE STEPS.—1888.

To protect the interests of Roofers, Property Owners and Architects, desiring first-class Roofing Plates, we have taken the following successive steps, year by year:

1884

We issued the first positive and binding guarantee ever given with Roofing Plates.

1885

We began to stamp every sheet of our "Gilbertson's Old Method" Roofing Plates with brand and thickness, and ceased the importation and sale of "Wasters" of the "Gilbertson's Old Method."

1886

We improved the contour of the "Canaret."

1887

We ceased the importation and sale of the "Canaret" of the "Canaret" We have every brand of both the above brands stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

1888

We have arranged to still further protect the interests of those desiring the best Roofing Plates by having every box of the above brands, marked with ACTUAL net weight of the plates in same.

A consideration of the above Five Steps will show how unjust it is to class other plates as equal to the above brands.

As the "Gilbertson's Old Method" weighs from 6 to 10 per cent. more than any other Dipped Plate, it is impossible for us to pay extra cost, duty and freight, and yet offer same, in competition with lighter plates. Nor can plates, of which the wasters are procurable, be classed or placed in competition with ours.

ALLEN B. RORKE.

A SKETCH OF THE WELL-KNOWN BUILDER AND CONTRACTOR, AND LIST OF HIS BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Philadelphia has been behind no city in the Union in the production of what may be termed representative men: those citizens who are the recognized exponents of the profession, or other occupation in life to which they may have devoted their time, talents or attention. Many of these representative men are such simply from natural causes; that is to say, they could not help being what they are, as it was born in them to become proficient in the specialties to which they have devoted themselves. In many cases where men have become prominent in any particular occupation in life, they have inherited the talent for the work before them, and their fathers before their time may have earned name and fame in the same calling.

Legal talent was hereditary in the families of Horace Binney and Joseph R. Ingersoll, the late famous Philadelphia lawyers. Engineering skill was hereditary in the family of Frederick Graeff who originated and constructed the Fairmount Water Works, and the talent for building noted structures is hereditary with Allen B. Rorke, the subject of this sketch, who stands at the head of the master builders and contractors of Philadelphia. Mr. Rorke, however, inherits his ability as a builder from his mother's family, as well as directly from his father, Mr. James Rorke, who for many years was a builder and master carpenter of considerable repute in Philadelphia.

Allen B. Rorke's skill as a builder is apparent in the work he has done, and is now doing, in the erection of numerous structures in this city that challenge the admiration of citizens generally, and among the masterpieces of his skill mention may be made of the magnificent store of Hood, Bonbright & Co., at Eleventh and Market streets; the brown stone and very ornamental new building of the Western Savings Fund, at Tenth and Walnut streets; the extensive building now going up at Twelfth and Market streets, under the auspices of the Trustees of the Girard Estate; Horticultural Hall, in the Centennial Grounds, etc., etc. Mr. Rorke has the superintendence of the erection of all the buildings of the Girard Estate, and he has recently erected two beautiful white marble buildings in the Girard College grounds, one of which has a dining hall that will seat 1,000 Girard College pupils. Mention is made below of his other building operations.

Philadelphia is the native place of Allen B. Rorke, he was born on the 1st of March, 1846, and he is now in the full vigor of manhood. He received his first education at a private school, and then went through a course of instruction at the Hancock Grammar School, Twelfth and Fairmount avenue, and the Public

Philadelphia in his early years, and became a master carpenter under Mr. Robert Reeves, and worked long and hard. He had seven children, two of whom are now living. His wife, the mother of the subject of this sketch, was a native of Wilmington, Del. Her maiden name was Rachel Kitchen, and she was of English descent, and members of her family were engaged in building operations. Mrs. James Rorke died in Philadelphia, in 1871, aged forty-six years, she was a lady of strong religious tendencies and sterling worth, from whom Allen inherited many commendable traits of character. Allen's grandfather, on his mother's side, was James Kitchen, a builder, born in Clearfield Co., Pa., and who lived to the age of seventy years.

John Rorke, Allen B. Rorke's grandfather, on his father's side, died at Birdsboro, Pa., aged seventy years, and his wife was a member of the Beardsley family of Pennsylvania German origin, from the interior of the state. The grandfather was a class leader in Birdsboro, and Allen's mother and her family all went to the old Brickmakers' M. E. Church at Twentieth and Walnut streets.

Allen B. Rorke left his father's employment at twenty-one years of age, and, after working for himself, went to Easton, Pa., when twenty-four years old, and followed his business. He built the well-known Pardee Scientific College at Easton—a fine structure—and remaining in Easton about one and a half years, he returned to Philadelphia and fairly started on his notable career as a builder. He erected the fine Board of Brokers building, back of the Girard College Bank, on Third street, and about the year 1879 he was largely engaged in important building operations, and soon obtained the personal friendship and esteem of many prominent Philadelphians: such as John H. Mitchener, Thomas Dolan, Mayor Edwin H. Fitler, John T. Bailey, James H. Windrim, Hon. Richard Vaux, Hon. Henry M. Phillips, Alexander M. Fox, etc.

Allen B. Rorke was married at twenty-one years of age, and he has two sons: Franklin M., aged twenty years, and Allen B., aged 15 years; and they also will become builders. He is a member of Melita Lodge No. 295, F. & A. M.; Jerusalem Chapter No. 3; Mary Commandery No. 36, K. T.; Philadelphia Consistory; Mys-

Grammar School at Eighth and Thompson streets. He commenced his business life at fourteen years of age, when he left school, and went under the instruction of his father Mr. James Rorke, and with him got the rudiments of his knowledge as a master builder. He remained with his father six or seven years and had but little time for amusement or recreation, as he worked from early morning until night and then studied about building until bedtime.

Allen B. Rorke's father was born in Reading, Pa., and is now about sixty-eight years of age, and is of Scotch-Irish descent. He came to

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAR. 5, 1888.

THE Real Estate Exchange of the city of Baltimore contemplate the erection of a large exchange and office building at an estimated cost of $250,000 for the lot and building. Plans have been submitted and a committee on location of building site are now considering the question. A tender of $150,000 has been made, and the probabilities are the proposition to build will be settled soon.

THE High School question, when looked at in sober earnestness, naturally presents the whole method of Public School Education for consideration. As we understand it the Public Schools were intended to give a limited education to the greatest number possible, and were never intended to educate a sacred few in the higher branches to the detriment or exclusion of the masses. The intellectual strength of a community, state or nation is governed entirely by a liberal dissemination of educational advantages for the many, and not by a high standard of possibilities for those formed by good luck or fortune to reap the advantages of a High School. In other words we hold it to be infinitely better all around that the boys and girls of this great city should learn to read, write and cipher tolerably well than it would be were a large percentage of them excluded—as is the fact even now—and the present magnificent proportions of the high school system extended a hundred fold, when it is considered that the average tax payer and citizen is unable to bear the strain of enforced idleness of his children during the period of a high school course, and that those who can afford it are with few exceptions sufficiently wealthy to send their children where they really belong, and give them the collegiate course which they now seek to derive through a high school at a tithe of the expense. The fact is we are flying our kite entirely too high. We practically defeat the true purposes of our school system by our mistaken ideas of what was really intended, and ere we know it the bitter curse of ignorance will blight the hopes of thousands through this exaltation of our public school system and the present restricted influences of rudimentary learning. We want more reading, writing and spelling, and considerably less high-falutinism.

THERE are entirely too many applications for liquor licenses; the list is too long, too wide, too deep, too high; it needs cutting down at both ends and in the middle and then again at both ends of the middle. The rum mills have flourished and prospered entirely too long already for either the comfort of the community or the advantage of property owners. The high license law has already greatly benefited real estate in several localities. Ninety-nine liquor saloons out of every hundred depreciate the value of properties on the block more than enough to buy the lot and building where the saloon is kept and pay for the stock and fixtures.

THE Boston Society of Architects has an association which draws all members of the profession together once a month. These meetings are made more interesting by the exhibition of designs and work particularly interesting to architects.

THE lumber trade itself is in a good condition. Winter logging operations have been a little more troublesome and expensive than usual, but like ice, the spring always finds enough on hand. There will be found this difference in the lumber trade next spring, that there will be less gunning after small buyers—more concentration and control and less cutting of prices—but all this must be said with the proviso, that the anticipations as to a heavy consumption of lumber are realized. The lumber manufacturers can not resist the downward tendency in prices, which is sure to follow a restriction in market demands.

THE sash, door and blind manufacturers of the North-west exercise no small degree of control over the similar interests throughout the East; in fact their goods find a market all over the country. Fifty-two large manufacturing concerns met a few days ago in Chicago, representing seventeen different manufacturing points. The door making capacity is 15,050 doors daily. The association has been working half capacity, and one object of the collection of statistics was to see if the restriction had been faithfully observed all around—sort of sugarizing the door business, as it were. The total stock of doors on hand Jan. 1, was 506,057; Feb. 1, 469,000. During the month of January there was a reduction of 7,121 glazed sash and windows, 12,111 open sash and windows and 1,861 outside blinds, the total of all kinds being 711,000 February 1. The association took great comfort from the fact that outside manufacturers are too small and too disorganized to seriously affect the interests of the association.

tic Shrine; Mercantile Lodge, I. O. O. F.; Excelsior Council, Legion of Honor; Manager of Masonic Art Association, Masonic Home, and Continental Lodge, K. B. In politics, Allen B. Rorke is an active, working, steadfast Republican, and his recent election to the powerful political position of Chairman of the Republican City Executive Committee is a flattering tribute to his personal worth and the confidence reposed in him by the Republican Party of Philadelphia. He entertains strong tariff views, and being a large property holder, he has always contributed largely to the Republican cause; but he has never sought political position, although it is believed still greater political honors await him.

The following are some of the building enterprises Allen B. Rorke has been engaged in, in addition to those mentioned above: he built the extensive carpet mills of McCallum, Crease & Sloan, at Wayne Junction; the large cordage works of Mayor Fidler, at Bridesburg; the handsome dwelling of Thomas Dolan, No. 1809 Walnut street; the Armory of the State Facilities, on Broad street, above Arch; the 25th Ward Gas Works; the smoke house, stables and packing house of John H. Mitchener; the cordage works of John T. Bailey & Co.; also Mr. Bailey's residence on Master street near Fifteenth street; the depot and stables of the Second and Third streets Passenger Railway Co.; the Traction Co. building on Walnut street, below South Fifth street (where his office is located); the large building of Hensel, Colladay & Co.; Justice, Bateman & Co.'s wool warehouse on Gothic street; O. S. Janney & Co.'s building on Letitia street; Sichel & Meyer's store on Eighth street, near Arch street; the granite annex to the Bank of Northern Liberties; Frank Thompson's mill on Lehigh avenue; the Lennox mills, at Bridesburg; the Monitor mills of Dorman Bros. & Co.; Jacob Reed's Sons' clothing store, Second and Spruce streets; Leedom's mill, at Bristol; the Manufacturers' Club House, on Walnut, near Broad street, and several fine dwellings for Henry B. Bunting and Joseph Sinnott, at Thirty-eighth and Locust streets, besides several warehouses, etc.

Allen B. Rorke is a man of pleasant, approachable manners, and of systematic, steady going method. He possesses strict business habits, and can bear the burden of great responsibilities without failing to carry them to a successful issue. As chairman of the Republican City Committee, he is the right man in the right place.

So far as next season's business prospects are concerned, it can be said there are no unfavorable features. In the West and Northwest business has been stimulated by the low freight rates. A good many large orders have been received at Eastern points for immediate shipment. Total bank clearings for last week show a decrease of 13 per cent. as against the business of same week last year. Gross railroad earnings for January show an increase of 3 per cent. on sixty-one roads against January last year, and 24 per cent. greater than for January, 1886. Manufacturers and business men in all large manufacturing and business centers are pursuing a policy of purchasing mainly for immediate requirements. There is not quite as much confidence in permanent prices as business men would like, and this leads to a more or less irregular demand. The outside public are letting all kinds of stocks and securities severely alone, and the manipulators of stocks are anxious to do something to restore confidence. Manufacturers do not see any danger in the future, and feel quite certain that there will be the usual heavy distribution of goods all over the country. Their confidence is not strong enough to induce them to manufacture goods largely ahead. In fact they are manufacturing only for what they regard as immediate requirements. The one great unsettling factor is the uncertainty as to railway building. If it could be known now that twelve or thirteen or even ten thousand miles of railroad would be built this year, we would feel quite satisfied. Business men know that iron, steel, lumber and building material generally would be in active demand, that all other products and supplies would be similarly strengthened. Too much reliance is placed upon the railroad question. Enormous demands will spring up in other directions. There is no doubt but that a very large amount of house and shop building will be done. The loggers and lumber manufacturers feel quite certain that they will have just about as good a season this year as last. The iron and steel makers are not preparing for any falling off in demand. The pipe makers are not doing quite as much, but they expect to keep their mills running on other products. The makers of boilers and engines are doing well. Throughout the West there is every reason for believing that the improvements which of necessity follow in the wake of railroad construction will keep any shop and factory capacity there busy. Tariff agitations are not interfering with enterprise to any very serious extent.

THE Illinois State Association of Architects holds monthly meetings, and at each meeting a number of papers are read which enables the membership to keep abreast of the architectural questions of the day. At the last meeting the question of house drainage, which is a very important one, was very ably discussed, and a paper was read showing that with modern fixtures and the improved use of water a drainage system may be constructed which will absolutely preclude the dangerous flow of gas into dwellings. This improvement involves a radical change in grouping the work, and necessitates that the whole system of waste and ventilating pipes in any building shall be built by one person, who will be responsible for it. The paper referred to commented on the fact that the different classes of workmen engaged to do the work did not, and at present could not, work in perfect harmony.

For the past week great excitement has prevailed among real estate men as to the probability of the Reading Company extending its tracks to Twelfth and Market streets, and a depot being built there. The reports received by us up to the present writing are so indefinite that it is impossible to give information that would be either reliable or satisfactory. Over two months since we investigated several purchases in the neighborhood of Twelfth and Market streets; then a report was sent to us that a syndicate of Chicago men were looking at the Twelfth street market with a view of erecting a large hotel on that site, and that $800,000 was offered and $1,000,000 asked for the property, and also that the small properties on Hunter street were to be torn down and a printing ink factory built there. Directly on top of this, reports of sales on Ninth, Spring Garden, Buttonwood, Noble, Willow, Callowhill and Vine streets came in rapid succession, and by the location would strongly indicate that this was a decided object in buying.

Following in the wake of these sales we can trace an imaginary railroad starting at Ninth and Green streets, thence in a southwesterly direction until Tenth and Willow is reached, along Willow to between Eleventh and Twelfth, and then taking a southerly course until Market street is reached. Those largely interested in railroad movements inform us that the new depot will be located at Ninth and Arch streets, and that the road will continue down Ninth from Spring Garden until that point is reached. It is even intimated that the Twelfth Street scheme is only a blind. The present week will probably disclose the intentions of the company.

The Mechanics' Lien Law Interpreted by F. R. Shattuck, Esq.

Buildings and machinery therein are liable to lien by contractor, sub-contractor, material man, laborer or mechanic, for material furnished to and work done upon the building and machinery.

Notice of material man's claim must be furnished the owner within ten days of the time of furnishing the material. The lien of a material man or contractor must be filed within six months after the work has been finished or the material has been supplied; but the sub-contractor, mechanic or laborer must file his claim within sixty days. Liens may also be filed by persons performing or furnishing labor for the construction of engines, derricks, tanks, buildings, etc., for boring, drilling, etc., upon leaseholds. If the material be furnished or labor be done by other persons than the contractor, the claimant must notify the owner of the leasehold of his intention to file a lien, and it must be filed within thirty days after the last work is done, and be verified by an affidavit.

A lien may also be filed against a building for work done or material furnished for or about any repair, alteration or addition to it, if the claim amounts to more than twenty dollars. In these cases the lien must be filed in thirty days and prosecuted in three months, and notice of intention to file a lien must be given when the work is done or the material furnished.

Tenants cannot however make the owner's property liable for repairs or alterations without his consent.

Operatives in factories, etc., also have a right of lien for wages, if the lien be filed within three months after the wages are due.

Where mechanics' liens are filed against the same property by the original contractor and sub-contractor, mechanic or laborer, the lien of the mechanic or laborer shall be first paid, and the owner or reputed owner shall be entitled to credit in settlement with the contractor, to the extent of the amount paid to satisfy the lien of the mechanic or laborer.

No building can however (or machinery) be made liable for an amount greater than the amount named in the original contract for the building of the same.

Where several houses and other buildings adjoining each other are erected by the same owner, so that it is impossible for the person who has provided materials for the same to specify in his claim the particular house or building for which the several items of his demand were provided, such person may file with his claim therefor an apportionment of the amount of the same among the houses or other buildings, and each shall be subject to the payment of its apportioned share of the debt.

If the claimant can specify the particular work done to any house, he must file separate claims.

Separation of blocks of buildings by streets, prevents an apportioned claim, but where the separation is by a private way, the claim may be apportioned.

The amount of the claim, the names of the parties, a description of the material furnished and the labor done, and of the location of the property, etc., must be particularized.

The lien must be sued out within three months of the filing, or it will be discharged, in cases of repairs or alterations.

The lien for original erections continues for five years, and may be revived. It has priority over advance money mortgages, except to an amount equal to the value of the ground immediately prior to the commencement of the building.

Of course the personal claim against the purchaser of goods or materials, or for hiring, can be prosecuted at any time within six years.

There has been a great diversity of opinion among lawyers as to the constitutionality of the mechanics' lien laws of June 17th, 1887. The principal contention has been, that it is in conflict with section 6, Article III. of the Constitution.

That section provides that "No law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred, by reference to its title only, but so much thereof as is revived, amended, extended or conferred shall be re-enacted and published at length."

On January 14th; 1888, Judge Arnold, in Common Pleas No. 4, decided that the Act of 1887 was not an amendment of existing laws, but a supplement to them, and that the Act of 1887 was constitutional. In consequence of this view, he held that it was essential, that a material man should give notice to the owner or his agent, of the amount and character of the claim, within ten days after the delivery of the material on the premises, and that this fact must be distinctly averred in the claim. Roth vs. Hobson et al., 21 W.N.C. 64.

Yours truly,

F. R. SHATTUCK.

The Reading Company Contemplates Improvements at Kaighn's Point.

The Reading Railroad is now on the verge of making specific changes in the road known as the Camden, Gloucester and Mt. Ephraim railroad, which has its terminus at present at the foot of Howell street. There are so many rumors afloat that it is almost impossible to get at the facts, but after a searching investigation the following was elicited: The track at present extends along Third street, until it reaches Atlantic avenue, when a sharp turn is made into Front street, along which it is continued until Howell street is reached, then along Howell to the terminus. The new road, as we understand it, will continue along Howell street past Front, and as Howell is not cut through further than Second street, at this point negotiations have been made for the purchase of property. The owner of 1216 South Second, Joseph G. Davis, is holding out for more money, the other houses as far as 1236 South Second are in the hands of the company, who probably will purchase the entire block bounded by Second, Mechanic and Pavia streets. The continuation of the road will then be nearly diagonally across the block bounded by Pavia on the West, Mechanic street on the South, and Locust street on the East, then through the meadows in the same westward direction until Third street is reached. On Mechanic street, west of Pavonia, is a row of brick houses; these will all be torn down as well as most of the houses on Mechanic street as far east as Second street.

This route will obviate the heavy curves at Front and Howell streets, and Front and Atlantic avenue. Some time since, a survey was made for the old Manchester Road, for which a charter was granted, and this survey is the one that will probably be used for the present improvement. Twelve acres will also be purchased on the south side of Kaighn's avenue, extending from Second street to the river. Negotiations are also being made for the purchase of the Crystal Glass Works, Charles B. Coles' stables and buildings, and several other places. This is the second time forfeit money has been deposited by the railroad company. The first time it was surrendered.

Painting Brick and Stone Buildings.

To prevent the disintegration of exterior brick or stone surfaces, caused by moisture of the atmosphere and change of temperature, paint should be used to cover the surface. Particularly in our Western cities do we find the stone gradually crumbling away, the same action taking place with the brick. The process of decay is very slow, but it is sure. How often do we see magnificent stone or brick edifices gradually scaling and crumbling down, when by the application of a coat of paint the action could be prevented for years.

The great object is how and what to paint these surfaces with. In the first place, it is useless to ruin the outside appearance by an application of cheap trash, which can be of no material benefit so far as preservation is concerned. It must be borne in mind that paints are mainly durable, and make the surfaces that they cover durable because of the waterproof quality of the oil with which they are mixed.

The natural pigments—called ochres or earth paints—do not in any degree act upon the oil: while others, such as white lead and the chromates of lead, do affect the oil chemically, and impair in a measure its tenacity and waterproof quality. For these reasons it follows that the natural pigments are not only the most economical, but also the most durable for painting brick or stone houses.

It has been demonstrated that the most durable paint for brick or stone houses is finely ground French ochre mixed in proportionate quantities with white zinc. The color produced is a soft shade of buff, most pleasant to the eye and permanent to the last degree both in color and material.

Venetian red, an artificial ochre or red oxide of iron, is in common use, but it does not hold oil like ochre, and makes a coating far less waterproof. It is a seemingly durable paint, because the stain which it imparts to a porous surface remains long after the oil has washed away. It cannot be used with zinc, because of the unsuitable color which it produces, and because this pigment (Venetian red) when tinted with white becomes highly fugitive in color.

The condition of the wall is also very important in painting brick or stone surfaces. The work should be done in warm, dry weather, when the moisture which the bricks or stone absorb during the winter and spring seasons has dried out, otherwise the paint will not be apt to adhere tenaciously, but will scale or peel off. The joints require constant looking after in the coping. These should be made absolutely impervious to water by the application of soft putty in a mass both on the top and the edges, and when this hardens to the point of cracking it should be renewed. Mortar and cement for such purposes are useless, for no matter how waterproof the surface may be, if the water be allowed to percolate through the joints, the integrity of the wall will be destroyed.

The first coating of paint for brick or stone should be mixed very thin, more as an oil stain than as a paint, to allow the brick to absorb all that is possible. By being thin, moreover, the paint readily runs into cavities that thicker material would not penetrate. The second coat can be used heavier in body. Then by the application of one coat every few years a building would last indefinitely, and the owner would feel that his building was proof against atmospheric changes.—The American Merchant.

An Important Decision.

Judge Crozier, of the Leavenworth county district court, has rendered a decision of unusual interest to the public, and especially to the people of the consolidated city. The point at issue was whether property purchased by a corporation for railroad purposes could be condemned for the use of another railroad company. The Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific companies held a title to a strip of land, 150 feet wide, between the bluffs and the river, and refused right of way to the Northwestern road to enter the city alongside of their tracks. The Northwestern gained the suit, as Judge Crozier decided that so long as the property in question was not in use by the railroad companies, it was in a condition to be condemned. The Northwestern will, therefore, connect Leavenworth with Kansas City, Kansas, and has already expended $250,000 in the purchase of forty lots on Wood street on which to erect passenger and freight depots.—Kansas City Real Estate Record.

A Quaint Relic.

The attachments of men are often very peculiar, and the tender care bestowed upon a mere trifle through caprice or any of the many reasons men give is often hard to interpret. A trifle to its owner might mean a life lesson, while to a stranger it would mean nothing. For many years before his death, Mr. James M. Vance, of the old hardware firm of James M. Vance & Co., 211 and 213 Market street, this city, expressed a singular attachment for an old pen-holder. It belonged to a class of pen-holders that were never worth perhaps more than fifty cents per gross wholesale, but it had been associated with his daily business life for over thirty years, in fact he would use no other, and so careful was he of its safety that if it happened at any time to have been removed from its usual resting-place upon his desk, his keen eye would detect its absence at once, and there was no peace until the old pen-holder was found.

To day the old pen-holder rests within a handsome frame suspended in the store, while he who wielded it so well and so long sleeps in death. The story is well told in the inscription written upon the card to which it is fastened.

"The hand of our senior partner, who used this pen for more than thirty years, has finished its work."

In Breslau, Germany, a chimney fifty-four feet in height has been constructed entirely of solid blocks of paper firmly compressed together, the blocks being placed carefully one on the top of the other and joined together with a special cement. The chimney is non-inflammable, and, by the nature of the material, quite secure from lightning.—Building.

The new reservoir of the National Water Works, in Kansas City, is sinking into the quicksand beneath, with a probability that the result of five years' labor and an expenditure of $1,500,000 will eventually drop out of sight. It occupies an old channel of the Missouri River.—Ex.

VOL. III.—No. 10.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MARCH 12, 1888.

HENRY K. FOX, Esq.

THE WELL-KNOWN REAL ESTATE LAWYER,
OPERATOR, AND ADJUSTER OF SALES OF PROPERTY.

Many real estate men in the city of Philadelphia, who are generally recognized as real estate brokers, agents, operators, or even conveyancers, have simply a more or less superficial knowledge of real estate transactions. They are able to buy and sell land, buildings, or other property, and where everything is plain sailing, and where no intricate legal complications are involved; or they can secure tenants for dwellings or stores, collect rents, look after repairs, or transact other routine real estate business. Some of them are men who have spent many previous years of their lives in other occupations, and have taken to real estate business as a dernier resort, but few of them have any knowledge of real estate law, or can tell at once anything about the validity of titles to property.

Then again there are real estate men in Philadelphia who have devoted the time, talents, and the energies of their lives to the deepest researches into every thing connected with real estate affairs, and who have thoroughly mastered the law in all its bearings on real estate operations. These men are in demand, and are even indispensable to corporate bodies, or private citizens, when transfers of property involving any intricacies are concerned.

Few real estate men in Philadelphia more emphatically belong to the latter class named than Henry K. Fox, of the firm of Daniel M. Fox & Sons.

Mr. Fox is the eldest son of the Hon. Daniel M. Fox, ex-mayor of Philadelphia, and present superintendent of the U. S. Mint, and who for a generation past has been recognized as one of the most prominent and trustworthy real estate operators in the city of Philadelphia. While thoroughly well-versed in everything connected with real estate transactions, Henry K. Fox is a well-informed lawyer, particularly in real estate law, and although overburdened with real estate general business, at the office established by his father, No. 508 Walnut street, he finds time to appear in court to plead causes mainly on questions concerning the rights of property owners. Mr. Fox, through his father's training, has legal acquirements, and through his extended experience is looked upon as an authority and expert in real estate matters in this city, and has conducted to a successful issue some of the most important operations in that line that have taken place in Philadelphia, and of which mention is made below.

Henry K. Fox was born in Philadelphia on the 21st of September, 1847, and attended public school until qualified to enter the Central High School in 1860. He remained in the High School about one year, and then went through a course of two years preparatory studies to enter the University of Pennsylvania and was admitted to the class of 1867. At the end of the sophomore year he left the University and entered his father's real estate and conveyancing office, which at that time was on Fifth street below Green. After mastering the conveyancing business, but not seeing sufficient future in it to satisfy his ambition, he entered upon the study of law with Robert M. Logan, Esq. He also attended the law lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, and was graduated there with credit to himself and took a degree. He was admitted to the bar on June 15th, 1878, and devoted his attention to and became proficient in real estate law and law of titles to property. Mr. Fox soon had a growing general practice, but still his specialty was real estate law.

His grip on real estate law, and his experience in operations relating to it, attracted the attention of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. about the time the great project of constructing the Filbert street elevated railroad from the Broad street station to the Schuylkill was under way, and he was retained by the company to proceed with the acquisition of property on the line of that great undertaking. Mr. Fox was constantly employed in this arduous and responsible work for over two years, and the skill he displayed and the consummate success with which he managed the Herculean task was the professional triumph of his life, and has had no parallel in the history of railroad extensions of that kind. All the Filbert street properties were purchased by Mr. Fox in fee simple for the Railroad Co., and all ground rents, mortgages, and liens of all kinds were paid off and every detail of transfer was settled to the entire satisfaction of purchaser and property owner, and without the aid of any road jury, notwithstanding condemnations were filed in nearly sixty cases. Mr. Fox dealt personally only with the owners, and when the operation was completed not an incumbrance remained along the line of property purchased. Since that time Mr. Fox has been engaged in securing the right of way for the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. over different sections of the city of Philadelphia, when railroad extensions were contemplated. He has solved many cases that have arisen for the assessment of land damages, and this has given him a keen insight into the value of property in different parts of the city and county, and has made his services often needed as an expert. Mr. Fox's services have been utilized by the Penna. R. R. Co. in various parts of the country in closing up land negotiations and right of way matters. His life is a busy one. Among other things he is attorney for the American Surety Co., the largest corporation of the kind in the world. Its cash capital is $1,000,000, and it has a large surplus. The business is to give corporate security for employes and persons in public and private trust, and also suretyship on judicial bonds, etc.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAR. 12, 1888.

ARCHITECT JOHN W. ROOT, in a paper recently read, shows how the tendency of architects is towards the sensational in art and away from accuracy. That while originality is being stimulated by all our surroundings, it is done often at the expense of genuine taste and exactness.

The brickmakers, in their address to the public, who, by the way, have no particular interest in the matter, claim to have advanced wages from 25 to 75 cents per day during the past two years. Whether this is a permanent gain remains to be seen. It is well they avoided the mistake of demanding a further advance this season. Building enterprise needs only a slight advance in real estate and in labor to induce it to say "not this year, some other year."

The lumber dealers have spent a busy week among builders and buyers. Yellow pine men have been particularly active and successful. Sales have been fair but buyers prefer to wait a while. The iron trade is dull. Nails are selling at $2.00 to $2.10. A few slate contracts have been placed within a week at last season's prices. Window glass is in good supply and at full card rates. Plumbing supplies have not declined and this season's prices will be the same as last. Planing mill work will be done at old figures. Plain and fancy brick contracts are being made at old rates. The workmen in the building trades have not made any unreasonable demands, and a year of moderate and uninterrupted activity is before us.

Once over the bar at the entrance from the Gulf, the Suwannee river holds its way with a deep current, in places, of forty feet, far up the forests of the best hard pine in the State. It is the Penobscot of Florida. It has some good land upon it, where plantations have heretofore been made, but after a while generally abandoned. The mosquitoes and malaria guard the main entrance against others than lumberman, anglers, and intrusive tourists. This dark river has, too, its romance, as being the place which gave rise to a melody that, like "Home, Sweet Home," the affections of the heart will never let go. For it was here that a French family in the time of Louis XIV came over and settled upon the Suwannee and made a plantation. After a while the father and mother and all died, save one daughter, who, disheartened and desolate, returned to France, and there wrote, adopting in part that negro dialect which she had been familiar with on the plantation in her girlhood, a feeling tribute to the "old folks at home" in their graves in the far-off country.—Florida Herald.

"THE CONNOISSEUR" for March is so "excellently well done," both in art and literary matters, that it is difficult to do it justice in the limited space at our disposal. One of the most striking articles is that of Edouard Rod, with its illustration on "The English Pre-Raphaelites." This is followed by a sketch of the life of "Antoine Joseph Wiertz," by F. Dix Schuyler. "Art Criticism," by B. L. R. Dane; "Precious Stones," by J. V. Wood; "Private Picture Galleries of the U. S.," by E. Durand Gréville, and "Artist Authors," by Frank L. White. Poetry is represented by Mildred W. Dorsey, Edward R. Champlin and Charlotte W. Thurston. The whole concludes with an able criticism on the present exhibition at the Academy of Fine Arts. Particular mention should be made of the frontispiece, "Spring," "The Roman Girl at the Window," "The Smoker," and others; but where there is so "much of a good thing," it is difficult to give each its due in a short article.

He is also attorney for a number of other corporations. He assisted in the trial of Duncan vs. the Penna. R. R. Co. (the well-known Girard Tube Works' case), involving consequential damages to property not actually taken by a railroad company, and the liability of the railroad company for such damages under the new Constitution of Pennsylvania. This case is now on appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States. He also took part in the trial of the case of Jenks vs. the Germantown & Chestnut Hill R. R. Co., known as the "Old Oaks" case; and in the case of Mitchell & Fletcher vs. the Schuylkill Valley R. R. for damages for property taken by the railroad at George's Hill. Mr. Fox was also concerned in the widening of the Delaware Extension R. R. from the U. S. Arsenal to Greenwich Piers on the Delaware.

At the February term of the Supreme Court, Mr. Fox argued a very important case called "Damon's Appeal," that involves the legality of the building of a railroad through the curtilage of a dwelling occupied by the owner, under the provisions of the general railroad law of 1849, which forbids a railroad company from locating their route "through a church, a burial ground, or a dwelling occupied by the owner." This case is attracting much attention, and its results are important to the community and to individuals, as many are directly affected by the decisions as defining, more particularly than any case previously decided by the Supreme Court, the rule as to how far a railroad may go in locating and constructing its lines in regard to this class of property.

In addition to his real estate practice, Henry K. Fox has a large and growing Commercial and Orphan's Court practice, and within the past year or two has received frequent invitations to accept executive positions in financial institutions, and others of like character that come within the line of his professional labors. While these offers have generally been quite tempting in a pecuniary sense, Mr. Fox has declined all of them, not caring to relinquish the position of independence he now enjoys, neither has he any desire to be taken out of the busy whirl to which he is accustomed. He is an incessant worker, and the days are hardly long enough for him; but being so systematic in his methods and habits, he seems to experience little fatigue, and always has a friendly greeting and smile for callers. He, moreover, possesses the faculty of giving an attentive ear to whatever is said to him on business, no matter how preoccupied his mind may have been.

Culver & Rogers, Ninth and Walnut streets, are working on the plans for a stone school house to be built at Berwyn, Pa., by the School Board of Chester County. The building will be in the Dutch style of architecture, one story high, and will cost about $5000. The same architects are also making plans for a summer cottage for Dr. J. B. Thomas, 912 Walnut street, to be built at Long Branch, N. J. Electric bells will be introduced. The block of stores and hall, before reported, to be built at the Falls of Schuylkill by William Abbott, of that place, will go on at once, contracts to be sub-let by the owner.

Angus S. Wade, 20 S. Broad street, is now working on the plans for the first house to be built on Edward E. Simpson's tract at Elm station, on the P. R. R. The base will be of stone; first story of clap-boards and false framing; second story of California redwood shingles, and the roof of cedar shingles. The interior will be finished in hardwoods throughout. Steam heat, electric lights, all the latest sanitary appliances. No contracts have been let. House will cost about $5,000. Mr. Wade has also designed a very neat office for Edwin E. Simpson, which is being built at Elm Station. The exterior is entirely made up of shingle, stained with creosote, and windows glazed with leaded corrugated glass. Other work for the same locality in contemplation.

Chas. F. Collom, 909 Walnut street, has two houses for Messrs. Taylor & Carr, to be built on South Broad street, near Tasker; size of buildings, 18x62, three stories high, containing fourteen rooms each; the fronts will be built of pressed bricks, with Connecticut brown stone trimmings, the first and second floors of the interior to be finished in hard woods and to have hard wood mantels and wardrobes. Henderson, to be built at Norwood, Delaware Co., Pa., building 30x55, containing twelve rooms; with all modern improvements; the roof and gables will be covered with the Cartwright patent metallic shingles, ample closet room; also pantry, toilet rooms, open stairs, etc. A portion of the interior will be finished in hard woods.

P. A. Welsh, 429 Walnut street, has finished plans for a store building on Front street near Vine street, four stories high, with a front of brick, stone and iron, fitted up with elevators. Contracts now letting. Also a handsome dwelling at Lock Haven, Pa., for Moore Fredericks, to be built of cream-colored brick and Indiana limestone, hardwood finish throughout, steam heating and all other modern improvements. The Germantown Daily Independent office, previously sketched in pressed brick and stone, has been changed to rock-faced stone on the main fronts, and in addition there will be a public hall. Also a brick and stone dwelling for the Rev. Mr. Powers, of Lock Haven, Pa. This building will be 2½ stories high, 40x76 ft. Steam heat and other modern improvements will be used. Another dwelling, for the Rev. Mr. Seibert, of Lock Haven, will be built from Mr. Welsh's plans, three stories high, of brick, with stone trimmings. The latter two houses are now ready to let. Sketches are now being made for a handsome house, with round tower and bay windows, making the building a very costly one. As plans are not sufficiently matured, a description is deferred.

Our Record.

1884.—THE FIVE STEPS.—1888.

To protect the interests of Roofers, Property Owners and Architects, desiring first-class Roofing Plates, we have taken the following successive steps, year by year:

1884

We issued the first positive and binding guarantee ever given with Roofing Plates.

1885

We began to stamp every sheet of our "Gibbertson's Old Method" and "Camaret" guaranteed Roofing Plates with brand and thickness, and ceased the importation and sale of "Wasters" of the "Gibbertson's Old Method."

1886

We improved the casting of the "Camaret."

1887

We ceased the importation and sale of the "Wasters" of the "Camaret." We had every box of both the above brands, stamped with the average net weight of the plates in same.

1888

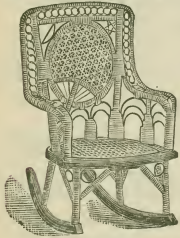

We have arranged to still further protect the interests of those desiring the best Roofing Plates by having every box of the above brands, marked with ACTUAL net weight of the plates in same.

A consideration of the above Five Steps will show how unjust it is to class other plates as equal to the above brands.

As the "Gibbertson's Old Method" weighs from 6 to 10 per cent. more than any other Dipped Plate, it is impossible for us to pay extra cost, duty and freight, and yet offer same, in competition with lighter plates. Nor can plates, of which the wasters are procurable, be classed or placed in competition with ours.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Matters concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

ATTACHING CREDITORS:—Where the Directors of a corporation for the handling and sale of wool, in the interest of the corporation, executed their individual notes for the purpose of raising money in bank to be advanced to a customer for the purchase of wool, the corporation receiving his note with security as a collateral indemnity, upon the payment of the notes given by the directors individually, they are entitled to the collateral note as an indemnity in preference to attaching creditors of the corporation.

Attaching creditors, standing in the attitude of assignees, must take the fund, if at all, subject to the prior equities who recovered it under an agreement with the plaintiff that he was to take his fees out of the claim.

ATKINSON'S APPEAL.

Oct. 31, 1887.

BENEFICIAL ASSOCIATIONS:—Where the by-laws of a mutual assessment life insurance corporation made it the duty of the directors to order an assessment upon the death of a member, and empowered the chairman to approve proofs of death, and at a meeting of the directors notice of a death was received but not the proofs, and the directors instructed the chairman to examine the proofs when they should arrive, and instructed the secretary, if the proofs were found correct, to issue notice of an assessment, and thereafter the proofs were examined by the chairman and approved by him, and the assessment was made in good faith accordingly, and was just and proper.

Held that such assessment was legal and was not open to the objection that it was made by the chairman and not by the directors; and that under the by-laws failure by a member to pay such an assessment placed such member in default and barred his beneficiary from recovering from the company on his death.

INS. CO. vs. BIONEBAUM.

Oct. 3, 1887.

DEVISE:—Testator devised his real and personal estate to his brother for life, and on his death "the real estate to be divided amongst my legal heirs, share and share alike." Held that the testator's intention was that his legal heirs should share alike in accordance with the statute of distribution and therefore per stirpes.

ALSTON'S APPEAL.

Nov. 7, 1887.

MORTGAGE:—Where in 1854 a son went into possession of land vested in the name of his father, and the son erected a house and farmed the land as his own, the declarations of the father and of the son and the understanding of their neighbors are evidence admissible to show a gift and actual continued and adverse possession by the son for more than twenty-one years preceding a writ of ejectment; and where the father and donor made a mortgage in 1874 of other lands, and perhaps including in whole or in part the land so occupied by the son was assessed for taxation in the name of the father, the facts were for the jury to determine whether the mortgage in fact covered the lands in question, and whether the son by actual continued and adverse possession had acquired title and as against the mortgagee in an action in ejectment brought in 1884. The jury found for the son: A mortgage of land in the exclusive possession of a third person is affected with notice of the title of such third person.

KENNEDY vs. WIBLE.

Oct. 31, 1887.

MECHANIC'S LIEN:—In an action to recover for work done and materials furnished in the erection of a building, the parties had agreed that the valuation of any changes from the original contract should be made by the architect.

The architect made two separate and different valuations, one showing amount due plaintiff, $965, the other showing an amount due of 65 cents. Held the parties were bound by the clause in the agreement, and must abide by his decision, in the absence of fraud, and it was a question for the jury to decide which valuation was the correct one.

The jury found for plaintiff, $965.

BREWING CO. vs. WALKER.

Nov. 11, 1887.

SHERIFF'S SALE:—Where an annuity of a widow is by the decree of the court, under the provisions of a will made a fixed charge upon land during her life, a sheriff's sale under that decree cannot divest such charge.

TRUBY'S APPEAL.

Oct. 31, 1887.

All above cases can be found in 10 Cent. Rep.

F. R. SHATTUCK,
Attorney at Law,
58 S. Third Street.

A Great Liking for Bells.

Johnny Martin, the office boy of a San Francisco firm, has a great liking for bells, and never tires listening to them. It is a positive mania with him. Some weeks ago he sent a type written letter on the letter head of the firm to a well known bell manufactory in New York, asking the price of bells, particularly large church bells, weighing from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds. In reply he received a circular and price list, and a polite letter earnestly asking his patronage. He acknowledged its receipt, saying that he thought their prices too high, and that he could do better in San Francisco. The bell makers at once sent their best salesman to California, with instructions to secure the contract at any price, and a few days ago he walked into the San Francisco house, and courteously asked for Mr. John Martin. No one knew him until the agent showed the letters, and then the bookkeeper said: "That must be our Johnny." It was. He was called in and confessed. The agent was very wroth, and demanded the instant discharge of the lad, but the firm said "No." They said the boy who could write such good business letters was the kind of a boy they wanted, and they promoted him. He says that when he gets rich he is going to build a church, and hang in it the biggest bell that this eastern firm can cast.—New York Sun.

FLAT roofs are coming into vogue for very large structures.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAR. 19, 1888.

SINCE the first of the year the production of iron has fallen off about 15 per cent. The mining of coal has kept pace with last year's output. The mills and shops have done fully as much this winter as last, and the general manufacturing capacity is about on a par with last March.

THE appointment of a committee on legislation by the president of the Real Estate Exchange is a very sensible step. The legislative committee of the New York Real Estate Exchange is its busiest one, and accomplishes the most good. The real estate interests of this city have been looked after in the most bungling way at Harrisburg.

THE changes which a year's experience has suggested in the constitution of the Real Estate Exchange will be made this week and go into effect at once. The Exchange is broadening its gauge and expanding its sphere of usefulness. It has opened its doors to all, and will in the future find advantages will accrue to it from this more liberal and business-like course.

DIVERSE views are entertained as to the admission of lawyers to membership of the Exchange. Real estate agents who are lawyers might very properly belong, but lawyers who are not in the real estate business, it has been argued, should not belong to the organization. At the outset of the Exchange there was a very strong feeling against having any but real estate interests in the Exchange. Many lawyers are deeply immersed in real estate operations, and this exclusion is inconvenient to them and, in a sense, unjust. The matter will no doubt be harmoniously arranged.

If it is definitely fixed that the Reading terminus will be on Market street, an advance in real estate values will be in order. Quite a number of purchases have been quietly made along the supposed route, and others are in negotiation. Market street real estate must of necessity advance steadily, and this is true, though in a less degree, of Arch street. Values at the Schuylkill end of Arch street have remained almost stationary for years, but even there an upward tendency, due to growing business necessities, has been shown recently.

WHAT proportion of the applications for licenses to sell liquor will be granted is a problem which cannot be solved at the present time. Two important facts, however, have already been elicited by the examination of applicants for licenses. The first of which is that the average liquor dealer is positively unfit to possess a license. The second is that the new license law came none too soon. The answers given to the questions of the Judges, although made with amazing frankness, conclusively prove that restraining laws have had heretofore little or no influence upon saloon keepers, and it's a question if they were ever intended to have. At all events, it is well known that while a certain gentleman, who is now an important factor in the present city government, and who is quite equal to the task of closing and keeping closed on Sundays, nearly all of the saloons in the city, made a signal failure in his efforts to close these self-same saloons on Sundays, while he was exercising even greater power as chief magistrate for several terms.

THE scarcity of building news in this number of the REAL ESTATE RECORD is owing to the recent storm, the self-same influences that have acted during the past week against the dailies having also defeated our best efforts in our respective specialties. The fact is our building news has become an important adjunct to the vast building material interests of both this city and state. It has already proved so advantageous to many of our subscribers, that cases are not at all scarce wherein a single pointer taken from these columns has been the means of securing business that has yielded in clear profit alone enough to pay for a subscription for many years to come. We have laid our plans and cut out big work for ourselves in the way of building news for the present season, and we hope to still increase the value of the RECORD AND GUIDE a hundred fold. As it now stands there is no single number issued that is not worth a whole year's subscription, for a perusal of these columns means business profit to every reader having sufficient energy to follow up the information given in them as to who will build and ergo, who must buy material from some one.

EXPERIMENTS in the construction of fire-proof buildings are going on on both sides of the water with an earnestness that indicates builders fully believe thoroughly fire-proof structures can be eventually reached. One of the latest, on which the owners show their confidence in its fire-resisting qualities by refusing to insure it, is in London. The whole of the structural portions are of concrete. The building, which has eight floors, stands on a solid bed of three feet of concrete. The ceilings, floors, and walls are floated with cement. The roof is concrete.

THE periodical rumors as to the removal of the Baldwin Works do not gain much force by the announcement that Contractor Garber will soon begin work upon an 82x85-ft. addition to those works, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets.

JUST what "reasons of state" justified the refusal of Select Council to refuse the extension of the time asked for by the Metropolitan Underground Railroad Company, are not apparent to the general public. The public will not be slow to assign a reason. The surface line interests, no doubt, are not ignorant of the motives of the eighteen Select Councilmen who voted to discharge the railroad committee authorized and instructed to report on the measure. The surface line people don't want an underground road which would give one million people rapid transit, improved sewerage, new pavements, water and gas pipes with accessible apartments and so on. The one million people of Philadelphia do want rapid transit, but the 18 to 10 vote in Select Council disposes of the matter, and the one million people must wait until those who control the votes and acts of our Municipal Parliament see fit to direct them to do something else. Of course if we were living under a republican form of government, instead of an absolute monarchy, a public indignation meeting would be called and the eighteen servants of the street car monopoly would be driven to resign. But no, their masters will take care of them, and the people can whistle or cry or denounce or do what they like. Last week's storm ought to settle the question of an underground road.

PRESENT indications do not point to higher prices for building material of any kind this year. The conservative course of business men, manufacturers, financiers, railroad builders and others, indicate very clearly that there will be no rush. The Tariff agitation will keep back a certain amount of business. The possibility of late labor complications will check building to some extent. The probability of restricted railroad building will restrain many who have been in the habit of measuring efforts by this generally reliable standard of railway activity. There is nothing at present in the commercial situation unchanged. People are everywhere awaiting the proper signal. More or less lack of confidence exists in the steadiness of prices. Consumers all along the line are carrying very light stocks and only buying when obliged to do so. No speculative movements disturb stock boards. A late spring trade seems to be generally anticipated. The railroad builders have not as yet shown their hands. The iron trade is in good shape. Textile manufacturers are guarding production so as to prevent a gorging of trade channels with goods and a consequent cutting of rates. Our architects speak with encouragement as to building probabilities. Builders are everywhere prepared for active operations. Manufacturers of and dealers in building material are well stocked up. Nails are strong at $2, $2.10. Brick, slate, glass, lumber, plaster lath, and a vast variety of building products will rule this year at about last year's prices. One-fourth of the window-glass used is imported, and in the event of a further reduction of duties, home production will be further restricted.

The tendency of prices is downward rather than upward, and this fact has a restraining influence. There is also a downward tendency in wages. Margins on nearly all kinds of manufacturing products are light. This fact is helping to check the tendency to overproduction that would otherwise exist. A few days will clear up many doubts as to trade probabilities. The total number of recorded failures so far this year in the United States and Canada is 2,626 against 2,736 in same time 1887. The general consensus of opinion is that this year's volume of business will be a little below last year. This opinion is the only one that existing conditions permit to be entertained, but it must not be lost sight of that no mind can grasp and weigh all the possibilities that may arise to direct trade this way or that.

The possibility of the prosecution of negligent plumbers for bad work leads to the inquiry what protection have good plumbers from bad ones in the matter of competition. The bad plumber can underbid the good one, and if complaints are well founded, there is a good deal of bad work and cheap work going on. The trade ought to have some sort of control over its members in this respect. The rigid legislation of a year or two ago has not produced all the good results then looked for. The attention of local medical and sanitary authorities has been recently called to unscientific work, and the matter will probably not be allowed to rest until some better system is devised. The plumbers themselves have as much at stake as anybody else, and the organization could wisely investigate the charges made as to inferior work done in utter disregard of sanitary requirements.

THE permit crop throughout the country looks flourishing, and no section of the country seems to be neglected. The anticipations of architects and builders seem pretty well founded. Even if a reaction is possible, it is unreasonable to expect it the next season, after laying 13,000 miles of main railroad track.

WHERE is real estate likely to advance most rapidly, was asked a real estate dealer this week.

Suburban sites for residences, was the reply.

What effect, if any, will office building have on the values of near-by properties?

Can't tell; not much, if any; too soon to find out.

What effect will the new office buildings, when tenanted, have on rents in other houses?

Not much—in fact, none at all, because the office room in this city has been densely overcrowded, and the new office buildings will only give tenants a better chance to turn around.

What are the prospects for extension improvements in the older sections of the city?

If business keeps good there will be a great deal more done this year than last, in the way of altering fronts.

What are the probable number of new houses that will be constructed this year?

There is no basis in which to calculate. We don't see many empty houses, and renting is good for the season—people are anxious to buy and sellers are quite willing to sell. A little reduction in industrial activity might check renting and buying, but it things keep on as they are we will not drop far behind last year's figures.

What percentage of profit do the big office people expect to realize?

Hard to answer. Drexel, probably 12 per cent., others count on more.

What is the general business outlook?

Just now things are quiet, but we can see no sound season for expecting a dull year. Money is all right, confidence is sound, the banks are doing a safe business. We are not running over head and ears in debt, and we ought to have a good year.

HENRY C. LEA voices the sentiments of the great body of the judges in his caustic letter concerning the creation of a park around the City Hall, in order that country visitors would have a better chance to stare, grip sack in hand, at our big house. The suggestion of such a scheme shows that the fool crop is prospering. The City Hall and surroundings, if such a project were carried out, would cost $30,000,000 before the thing was through with.

IRON brick is a novelty not yet introduced in this country, but they have been made abroad to some extent. Our well-made American brick will answer all requirements.

THE City Hall would look much better if the north, south, east and west entrances were four times larger. They are little better than mere rat holes, through which the tide of pedestrian travel surges. From an architectural standpoint, the building would look far better if these openings were larger.

IN Norway the coldest weather, it is said, does not prevent building; it is even claimed that mortar can be made to dry better and quicker in cold weather than during the hot months of summer. The secret, it seems, lies in the preparation of the mortar, which is made in small quantities, unslaked lime being used in such proportions as the temperature of the weather may require, the object being to obtain from the lime the greatest amount of heat, to accomplish which it is necessary to use the mortar immediately after it is prepared, the object being to get the mortar in place and bound with the bricks before the slaking process is completed. It is necessary to select bricks that have been kept under cover, as wet or frosty bricks will only produce poor work, no matter how much care is taken in the preparation or handling of the mortar.

BUILDERS and insurance companies are willing to listen to anything which promises to reduce the inflammability of structures. The Belgian Government is paying the cost of exhaustive experiments in this direction. The tests show that while wood cannot be made fire-proof, its liability to take fire can be greatly lessened. Various compositions have been tested, and some of them are unavailable on account of cost. Coating with a brush with cyanide of potassium and asbestos paint is the most serviceable.

THERE is no doubt that employers of labor are equally at fault in the matter of the non-employment of apprentices. How many employers want to be bothered with apprentices? Very few. In fact, they long ago decided they did not want apprentices, as the word used to be defined. The trades unions would object less to young men or boys learning trades, if it were not for the fact that they are pushed into competition with full-fledged mechanics at half-fledged wages, before they are masters of their craft. Major Hewitt has brought down on his head all manner of harsh criticism for his severe strictures on trades unions. The unions are certainly carrying out an arbitrary and unreasonable policy, and one which is doing more than any other single cause to stimulate the trade school idea. But there are other people somewhat at fault, and they are the employers who are unwilling to be bothered with apprentices.

—At Penn's Station (P. O. town), Westmoreland Co., Pa., an immense steel plant is to be erected by a company composed of Pittsburg and Eastern men. The capital stock of this new company is to be about $1,000,000. A number of buildings, including a rolling mill, a blast furnace, a Bessemer converting and blooming mill, machine shops, steam hammer shops, and a finishing shop, are to be erected, the whole with machinery is to cost about $500,000. Among the stockholders are James A. Chambers, and H. Sellers McKee, both of Pittsburg.

Water works and reservoir will also be erected. The water will be piped about 16 miles. Pumping houses will be erected, and the water works with machinery will cost about $300,000. The steel company will also erect a large number of houses for the employees.

Leach, 172 North Avenue, Allegheny City, Pa., is President, are considering the question of raising the necessary money for the erection of a fine building, and establishing a Pittsburg Board of Trade. A committee, consisting of George W. C. Johnston, of James Henderson & Co.; C. F. Horning, of Walter, Horning & Co.; O. N. Head, of Head, Carson Co.; J. Dunlevy, of Walker, Dunlevy & Co.; and C. Wessel, of Temperanceville, have been appointed to select and purchase a building site, $200,000 will be required, and it is thought that there will be no trouble in raising that sum. The building will be large enough to furnish offices for all of the provision men in the city. At same place the Board of Trustees having in charge the erection of a new Masonic Temple, before reported, will meet on the 20th inst. to examine plans for the new building, which are to be submitted for competition prizes for second and third, being placed at $300 and $200 respectively. The building is to be six stories, and is to be built of brick with stone trimmings. It is to be 70 feet on 5th Avenue and will have a depth of 120 feet. Its cost will be about $125,000. We know of two Philadelphia architects who are competing.

—The Westmoreland and Cambria Natural Gas Company's office is in the Stevenson Building, Pittsburg, Pa. The company recently declared a quarterly dividend of two and one-half per cent. The company's gas resources are almost boundless, for they have 28,000 acres of territory in the Grapeville field and between 8,000 and 9,000 acres in the Latrobe field, all leased for twenty years. Farm land in some sections adjoining this territory, which two years ago was selling for $35 an acre, cannot be bought for $800. Of the company's fourteen wells, it is found necessary to operate only six and the pressure from these wells has not changed a pound in two years, evidencing a steady flow of gas, which gives no indication of playing out during the term of the lease. It was never expected to work the big territory under lease, but by holding it the Westmoreland Company bar out the other gas people who need the fuel.

The sixteen-inch main line runs from the Grapeville field to Johnstown, a distance of forty-two miles, while the new line, completed last December, extends from the Latrobe field to the end of the main line. The company supplies Johnstown and Latrobe with gas, and has altogether, 110 miles of pipe. The largest consumer is the Cambria Iron Works, with its capacity for 240,000 tons annually. The new line was built for the purpose of supplying the Johnson Steel Street-Rail Company, the capacity of which plant is 100,000 tons annually. In addition to Johnstown and Latrobe the Company will pipe the town of Derry. This last-named work will be commenced when spring opens, and will be completed towards the close of the summer.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

John M. Sharp will soon commence the erection of a number of three-story houses on Cleveland avenue, between Norris and Fountain streets.

The R. C. Church of St. Thomas Aquinas, Seventeenth and Tasker, will soon begin the erection of a new church building. Rev. M. J. Lawler can give information.

The Solicitors Company have purchased the property adjoining their building on Fourth street, near Walnut, for $50,000, which will be used as an addition. Building will be deferred for some months. No architect has been employed.

R. J. Dobbins has offered the Co-operative Glass Company three acres of land at Pennypack, on the N. J. Division of the P. R. R., for the erection of works, if they will locate there. The Disstons have offered one acre and a half to the same parties at Tacony.

Architects' Notes.

S. Gifford Slocumb has opened an office on the north side of Chestnut street, near Second.

Contracts have been let for W. D. Allen's building, 5th and Commerce streets. Thomas H. Doan is the contractor.

Wendell & Smith are about to commence the erection of ninety houses at Wayne. The tract of land recently purchased lies in North Wayne, and is bounded by Eagle avenue on the north, Walnut avenue on the south, Wayne avenue west, and Radnor avenue on the east. The houses will be similar construction to those put up in Wayne. The designs in part have been furnished by J. C. Worthington and F. L. Price.

Collins & Autenrieth, 410 Walnut street, are now working on the plans for the addition to the Philadelphia Library. The building will be 63 feet, square connected with the old portion of the library by a 16 foot passage way into which the offices will be removed. The first floor will be used for a reading room and the two galleries will contain the books. All toilet necessities will be introduced. Steam heat will be used. No contracts have been let.

G. W. & W. D. Hewitt have finished the plans for the new Episcopal Church, to be built near the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Chestnut Hill (before mentioned.) The building will be 84x52 feet, of local stone with Indiana lime stone trimmings. A porte cochere 28x16 feet, supported by three stone arches, will front the main entrance. The chancel will be 32 feet deep, with the vestry on one side, and the organ room on the other. The ceiling will be paneled with varicolored brick arches, resting on eight pillars of colored brick. On the southwest corner will be a tower 100 ft. high. The roof will be of red slate. The seating capacity will be 600. Furnaces will supply the heat. Estimated cost about $50,000.

Charles W. Bolton, 1510 Chestnut street, has drawn the plans for two banking houses, branches of the Bank of North America. The first is to be located at the corner of Germantown and Lehigh avenues, and will be constructed of brown stone and Indiana lime stone trimmings, one story high with a frontage of 19 feet, and a depth of 65 feet. The roof will be of slate. A large vault will be built on the most scientific principles. The interior will be fitted up with hard woods. Hot air will be used in heating; gas and electricity will be used for lighting purposes. The entrance is from Germantown avenue through an arched doorway, provided with an ornamental grill. On the corner there will be a large column extending above the main line of the building, surrounded by a copper eagle. The building in its details will be Romanesque. The other branch will be at Ridge and Columbia avenues, with a frontage on both streets. This building will be three stories high. The upper floors to be used as a dwelling house. The entrance on Columbia avenue will be through a triple arched entrance of Indiana lime stone, with tiled floor. All of the arches will be filled with ornamental grills. The entrance from Ridge avenue will be through one large arch supported on twin columns. The fronts to the height of the second story will be of Indiana lime stone. The balance buff brick with trimmings to be red pressed brick. There will be a balcony in the third story, with large brick arch. The gables will be coped with lime stone. All of the capitals will be handsomely molded and carved. The interior is fitted similarly to the other bank. Mr. Bolton is also receiving estimates for Hope Presbyterian Church, at Thirty-third and Wharton streets. These estimates are for interior work, which includes plastering, stained glass, wainscoting, doors, pews, and seats. The plastering will be colored with ornamental columns, arches and capitals. The general finish will be in chestnut wood. Steam heat will be used. Also, a stone house three stories high, for Henry Becker, to be erected at Bryn Mawr. The house is about 40 feet square, finished in hard woods; also, a stone stable for the same. Adams and Baker will build another stone house at Clifton Heights, Pa. This is a single house, 35x45 feet, finished in hard woods. Mr. Adams will also build a stone stable for his own use. George Abbott, of Moorestown, N. JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Singler,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, MAR. 26, 1888.

Our city authorities should not stop the good work of cleansing and purifying. The great decrease of liquor saloons will do much towards redeeming those sections of the city that have been abandoned to vice and crime, nightly raids by the police should be continued, and heavy fines should be imposed until the law-breakers yield under the pressure of reform, and either vacate their premises or abandon their calling altogether. Property owners should come to the front with petitions to councils to change the names of streets that bear unsavory reputations, and this should be followed with an effort at renovation that will remove as far as possible the blight that has settled upon their neighborhoods. There are miles of properties that could be reclaimed and which would soon be in demand as residences for respectable people, were the proper efforts made.

THE Atlantic City Review fears an influx of disappointed license seekers from Philadelphia, and it earnestly recommends vigorous measures on the part of the city authorities and the liquor men of that place to prevent it. The gallant editor and proprietor of the Review evidently fears the Philadelphia method of adulterating whiskey, and opposes its introduction on personal grounds.

At Atlantic City the question of paving Atlantic avenue is being agitated. If a good asphalt pavement was laid its entire length, it would not only enhance the value of property on the avenue but it would also improve it for riding and driving purposes. Belgian blocks or stone pavement of any kind would be out of place altogether, and it would be worse than stupidity for city councils to even entertain such a proposition.

BUILDERS sometimes make losses by accepting notes for work done on houses which fall due after the time allowed by law to make a lien on the property. Suits which grow out of such neglect generally go one way. Notes should in all cases be made to fall due before the lien limit expires.

GAS consumers are more anxious for a proper supply of good gas than as to the measures by which it will be supplied. Water gas is used in over seven hundred cities and towns in the United States, because of the comparatively small cost of plant, and the low price and good quality of gas produced. There seems to be no good reason for delay in reaching conclusions as to which methods of gas production is best, and certainly there is very little room for discussion as to whether it should be made by the city or private parties.

AND now comes the refreshing news that an English builder has invented a panic lock for theatre doors, pressure on an inside panel of the door opens it instantly, but from the outside a regular key must be used.

THE Delaware County Record celebrates its tenth birthday anniversary by appearing in a new dress and greatly improved every way. It is one of the best suburban weeklies published, and any new or old resident of the county who tries to get along without it, pays dearly for his obtuseness in more ways than one.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Matters concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

BANKING:—A certificate of deposit not being a negotiable instrument the transferees of the original parties must depend on the equities of those from whom they claim title, unless they have some new and independent title of their own.

In an action by the assignee of one to whom the payee first assigned a certificate of deposit against the maker who is the subsequent assignee of the payee, the defendant may show as a defense that the certificate was assigned by the payee to the plaintiff's assignor as collateral security for the payment of a gambling debt, or that the defendant was an innocent purchaser for value without notice. Such a defense is a complete bar to the action unless the plaintiff himself is an innocent purchaser for value.

DEMPSEY vs. HARM.
Oct. 3, 1887.

CONTRACT:—An agreement between a husband and a third person as trustee for a wife that, in consideration of the discontinuance of a suit by the wife for divorce on the ground of intolerable treatment, the husband will execute a bond and mortgage to the trustee to secure the payment of $10,000 (instead of $4,000 by ante nuptial agreement) in case, by the husband's treatment the wife's condition should become intolerable, is a valid contract and not contrary to public policy.

After the discontinuance of the suit, the execution of the bond and mortgage, the return of the wife to cohabitation with the husband and his subsequent breach of the condition, the trustee may maintain an action against him on the bond.

REAMEY vs. BAYLEY.
Oct. 3, 1887.

DEVISE:—Where the devise is to the testator's daughters, of the mansion house and the farm, "with an exception if necessary hereafter mentioned," with the provision that upon the decease of any of his daughters, their portion of the mansion farm is to belong to the surviving sister or sisters, during their life or lives, but if "any of my children should become destitute of house or home, they are to have the privilege of making the mansion house and farm their residence with those there, upon good behavior; it is intended by me as a home or asylum for my wife, sons and daughters, and not to belong to or go into the possession of any other person or persons while any of them live and necessity require it, without the consent of those living," the daughters take a fee in the land charged under certain contingencies with the support of the testator's wife and of his destitute children, if any there might be; this is the "exception if necessary" referred to by the testator in making the devise of the farm to his daughters.

REYNOLDS vs. CRISPIN.
Oct. 31, 1887.

LANDLORD AND TENANT:—Where the plaintiff with his brother leased a building for the year beginning April 1st, 1882, occupying a portion thereof for a grocery store, and subletting the balance, and on the first of January, 1883, the plaintiff purchased his brother's interest, and on the sixth day of February, 1883, the defendant purchased the grocery business of the plaintiff, having already acquired the building in which the grocery was located, and in his contract of purchase he agreed "to pay all rents on building where goods are found for which said Coen (the plaintiff) is liable, and to receive all rents coming to said Coen on the above-named building, from the day of the completion of the invoice, until the first day of April, 1883," the defendant was liable to pay the rent on the premises only for the time during which he received rents from the plaintiff's tenants; that is, from the day of the completion of the invoice until the first day of April, 1883. As there was no ambiguity in the written contract, all oral testimony was properly excluded.

COEN vs. ADAMSON.
Oct. 25, 1887.

VENDOR & PURCHASER:—When a decedent had in his life time made a contract for the sale of land owned by him, and the vendee in such contract had paid a part of the purchase price and taken possession, held, that a sale of such land to a third party by order of the Orphans' Court or petition of said decedents' administrator, did not affect the equitable title of the vendee in said contract of sale.

The purchaser at the Orphans' Court sale conveyed the land to the administrator of said decedent, who thereafter conveyed to the present plaintiff.

A decree was subsequently made by the Orphans' Court, on petition of the vendee in said contract of sale directing the administrator d.b.n. of said decedent to execute a deed to the vendee in said contract in specific performance thereof, which was done, and the balance of the purchase price paid by said vendee into Court and awarded to said administrator, to which proceeding the present plaintiff was a party.

Held that such action of the Orphans' Court, not having been appealed from was conclusive on the parties, and estopped the present plaintiff from suing said contract vendee for the balance of the purchase money.

NELSON vs. NELSON.
Oct. 17, 1887.

All above cases can be found in 9 cent. Rep.

F. R. SHATTUCK,
Attorney-at-Law,
58 S. Third St.

A Valuable Book for 25 Cents.

At Leary's Old Book Store, No. 9 S. Ninth street, several hundred neatly bound copies of a little work entitled Landlords and Tenants are being retailed at twenty-five cents each, the original cost of which was $1.00. The book is the production of Richard J. Williams, Esq., a member of the Philadelphia bar, and is valuable from the information it contains to every landlord and tenant in the State of Pennsylvania, or, as the author puts it in a terse preface, "Such laws are very numerous and are usually collected together in large and expensive books beyond the reach of the masses." To the tenant the work is of great value, as the nature of contracts is made perfectly plain, and both tenants and landlords will have a better understanding of their rights and remedies after a careful perusal of its pages.

THE relative number of persons speaking the different languages of the world is thus stated by Professor Kirchhoff, to decide a dispute as to the most popular tongue. Chinese is spoken by 400,000,000, Hindostani by something more than 100,000,000, English by more than 100,000,000, Russian by more than 70,000,000, German by 58,000,000, and French by about 40,000,000.

FOR some time past experiments have been made in Germany with a composition of cork, sand, and lime molded into bricks for the construction of light partition walls. This, it is said, excludes sound better than brickwork, and is also light and a good non conductor of heat.—New York Sun.

FOUR-room houses readily bring $20.00 per month in Pittsburg, and one agent says he could rent five thousand of them in a month at that price if he had them.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 2, 1888.

A GOOD many properties in the old city have been purchased by far-seeing buyers, who recognize that there is need for more manufacturing, storage and office requirements in the old city limits. The business capacity of the old city can be multiplied at a cost altogether out of proportion to the increased facilities afforded. The business interests feel the pressure for more room, and many old dilapidated properties and dwellings are changing hands with a view of utilization hereafter.

It is a mistake to regret the downward tendency in prices. This tendency in its effect is not unlike the effect of the hard training pugilists submit to in order to reduce their weight and powers of endurance. When prices do, as they soon will, reach bottom, the business of the country will be in better shape, the inefficient will be crowded out or aside, and the legitimate business interests will be in decidedly better trim for the business of the year. Material of many kinds is lower than for two years. Brick continues high, and it is given out in some well-informed quarters that prices will be higher before the close of the season. It is learned that all the down town yards are filled with orders for the season, and those up town are practically sold out. Two new yards are projected near the city. Brick from outside yards will soon begin to arrive, and pressed brick will be shipped here from remote points. The slate industry is in good shape. Nails are $2.00, $2.10, and the supply is heavy. Iron is lower than for two or three years. Pipe, fittings, etc., are also down. Plumbing work remains unchanged when good work is assured, but prices are fluctuating when quality of work is not protected. Lumber is low, lath, shingles, posts and pickets are down, and the supply promises to be nearly enough to protect buyers against the possibility of an advance.

UNDER no consideration should the Reading Railroad be permitted to cross Arch street, unless it be through an underground passage. The right of eminent domain may be a very good law under certain circumstances, but the rights of eminent comfort, of eminent beauty, and the restriction of eminent nuisances are and should always be held preëminently sacred over the money-making proclivities of corporations and their desire to outdo their competitors. The arguments advanced in favor of the elevated scheme are stupid. Arch street is a public business thoroughfare of no small account even now, and twenty years hence its business importance will be second to no street in the city. If the company insists upon going to Market street, it should be allowed to do so only on such terms as will benefit the city, and not through the means of elevated viaducts and hideous monstrosities, such as the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has disgraced the city with. The underground proposition would rid us of one nuisance, and avoid the necessity of another, for an elevated structure on any part of the proposed route would be an unmitigated nuisance in any shape.

THE Pittsburgh merchants engaged in supplying builders with material have formed an association to be known as the Builders' Supply Protective Association. Every builder who does not pay his debts will be posted. Later on, the Association will attempt to fix prices for building material.

The following table shows the operations in the respective wards for the four weeks in March of this year, for which building permits have been granted.

JOHN N. GALLAGHER, Prop'r.

Refers with permission to William M. Singler, Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 9, 1888.

THE Land Title and Trust Company's new building is almost ready for occupancy. The building itself is a creditable structure and seems well suited for the purposes it is intended to serve.

At Atlantic City the idea of paving Atlantic avenue, as suggested by the REAL ESTATE RECORD, with some of the many good kinds of asphaltum pavements now in use, is rapidly growing in favor, and the Philadelphia Paving Companies are sharply looking after their interests.

THE new sugar refinery which Mr. Spreckles proposes to build will tax the best efforts of our brick makers after consuming most of the superfluous stock in hand. Considerable advance may be reasonably expected in the price of bricks if there is no hitch in the present arrangements.

THE possibility of the new sugar refinery becoming one of the city's industries has developed into a certainty. The Merrick property between Dickinson street and the Navy Yard on the Delaware front is the site selected and purchased by Mr. Spreckles, costing $500,000. A force of twenty-five architects will be brought over from New York at once, and contracts will be let as fast as the work of designing proceeds. The buildings will be numerous and large but plans have not been completed.

PROPERTY bordering on the Schuylkill river has already appreciated considerably in value, owing to the facilities afforded by the B. & O. R. R. It is reported that the erection of several large mills is contemplated in the near future, and that manufacturers are attracted to this section by the adequate water supply and efficient transportation facilities.

Building and Real Estate Notes.

St. Bridget's Church, Falls of Schuylkill, will build a parochial school house.

J. Bergamire will build two two-and-a-half story frame dwellings on Delaware avenue, Holmesburg.

Charles Sowerby will build a two-story frame house at Holmesburg. The cellar walls are about finished.

A design for a new building has been accepted by the Hebron Presbyterian Church at Twenty-fifth and Thompson streets.

The Dispensary, the Institute and the Sabbath School building of Beacon Church, Cumberland and Cedar streets, will be built this summer.

The Wissahickon Baptist Church will build in a short time on Terrace street above Dawson. The building will have a frontage of 60 feet and a depth of 80 feet, and will be two stories high.

The lot bounded by Forty-second, Holly, Baring streets and Powelton avenue, 110x364 feet, has been purchased from the estate of the late Eli K. Price for $7,000 by John M. Erickson and Louis C. Smith, upon which will be built forty-one two-story dwellings.

Recent Decisions in Relation to Matters concerning Real Estate and Commercial Law.

DECIDED BY THE SUPREME COURT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

BILLS AND NOTES:—Where evidence was introduced in a trial, tending to prove that a promissory note in suit was given in renewal of a former note payable to the order of and endorsed by plaintiff, it was error to instruct the jury that if such was the fact, they might infer therefrom that the parties to the note in suit intended that it should be filled and endorsed precisely as the former note was, and that by mistake it was not so done.

AHLBORN vs. WOLFF.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

BAILMENT:—Where a miller was in the habit of receiving grain from different persons and receipting for it as follows: "Received from _____ bushels. Price $____. For use of self," and the grain was mingled in one mass together with his own, and the miller had no authority to sell his customer's shares of the common stock of grain delivered to him, nor the flour which was the product thereof, the transaction was a bailment and not a sale. In this case judgment creditors of the miller issued execution and levied on the flour in his mill. Plaintiff in feigned issue claimed that the flour was the product of grain sent to the mill by him.

BRETZ vs. DIEHL.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

DEVISE:—A testator whose estate consisted of real and personal property, divested: "The balance of my estate shall be divided between my children share and share alike, except what may be coming to my daughters. . . . Their moneys to be invested by my executors in bonds, mortgages, or other good securities, they receiving the interest on same, and at their death to revert to their children." Held, that the word "moneys" did not apply to the daughters' share of the real estate, and that the daughters could make a good title in fee simple to such real estate, free from any trust.

WIDENER vs. BEGGS.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

FIRE INSURANCE:—The purchaser of real estate under articles of agreement, is in respect to a policy of fire insurance, the entire unconditional and sole owner of the real estate, and the fact that he omitted to state the nature of his title, and that he had paid none of the purchase money, does not invalidate his policy.

Where the agent of a fire insurance company was authorized to renew and consent to the transfer of policies, and it appeared that the property insured had been transferred, and the policy thereby rendered void, but that subsequently the agent had approved the assignment of the policy to the purchaser, held the policy was thereby renewed, and the company was bound by the act of its agent.

INS. CO. vs. DUNHAM.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

LANDLORD AND TENANT:—The assignee of a landlord's warrant is not liable in an action of trespass for damages for an illegal distress made under said warrant, when the evidence fails to show that he was aware of the assignment or that he was in any way a party to the proceedings.

GUCKERT vs. LOWRIE.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

A tenant of an oil lease who has been fraudulently dispossessed by his covenants, is entitled upon his reinstatement to recover his share of the oil produced while he was so dispossessed, without deducting the costs of production.

The relation of the parties as cotenants, and the fact that two of them, after fraudulently dispossessing the other, may have continued to use this property, as it probably would have been used had they all remained in possession, does not qualify this rule of damages.

FOSTER vs. WEAVER.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

TRADE MARK:—Where a person adopts a device or symbol to mark his goods, he acquires a property in such device or symbol, of which he cannot be deprived. The use of defendant's name on a spurious trade mark is no defence to a bill to restrain the piracy.

Where a father adopted and used a trade mark, and his children on his death continued without interruption the same business and used the same trade mark, their mark cannot be interfered with by a stranger who has never acquired a right in any way to use it.

PRATT vs. DARLINGTON.
Jan. 3d, 1888.

All above cases can be found in 10 cent. Rep.

Old Brickwork.

Though the Romans used bricks in their construction, and introduced them into England, there are few examples of brickwork to be found in the interval between the Roman occupation and the 13th century. The instances of the use of bricks in rough arches, as at Brixworth, only show that the Roman bricks were taken from some Roman building and re-used, and it has been thought that the earliest modern introduction of brick in England is Little Wendham Hall, Suffolk, erected in A. D. 1260. Hurstmonceaux Castle, Sussex, in Henry VI.'s reign, is another building in which brick is used; but it was not till the time of Henry VIII. that the manufacture of brick was encouraged. The Elizabethan era is noted for the number of its brick buildings, and good instances may be found in Porchester Castle, Hants, and in Kenilworth Castle, in the old portions of Hampton Court Palace. The Lollard's Tower at Lambeth Palace is a still earlier specimen, dating about 1453, and is one of the finest brick examples in London. The sizes of the older bricks varied, and it was not till the time of Charles I., in 1625, that bricks were made to a regulated size. During the latter part of the 17th century, after the Great Fire, the use of brick in panels carved with the chisel became prevalent, and a few samples are to be met with. The backs of old fireplaces are very often found to be built of brick, arranged in herring-bone courses. In the Great Hall at Kenilworth; at Netley Abbey, Hants; and in Bodiam Castle, Sussex, the fireplaces are constructed of tiles or brick. The introduction of the Flemish style of building encouraged the employment of brick architecture in England, and the revival of the use of brick that has lately taken place is to be attributed to the same cause.—The Building News.

According to the Belgian savant, Quetelet, a man attains his maximum weight about his 40th year, and begins to lose it toward his 60th year. A woman, however, does not attain her maximum weight until her 50th year. The weight of persons of the same age in different classes of society also differs. In the affluent classes the average maximum weight is 172 pounds and is attained at 50 years of age. In the artisan class it is 154 pounds, attained at 40. Among farm laborers it is 171 pounds, attained at 60. In the general classes it is 164 pounds, and is reached between 40 and 50 years of age.

The average weekly consumption of coal in London is 250,000 tons.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, APRIL 16, 1888.

THAT which puzzles a Philadelphia lawyer is held to be throughout the Continent positively incapable of interpretation, hence it follows that when so eminent a jurist as Judge Allison, with his many years of legal experience, frankly admits that the meaning and intent of the New Mechanics' Lien Law is even beyond his comprehension, and is a piece of careless and slovenly legislation, although not in conflict with the constitution of the State, it becomes necessary for those whose interests may be affected by the new law to exercise the greatest care in their business transactions, at least until the law is properly interpreted.

We may seem very stupid, but for the life of us, we cannot recognize the much boasted advantages of that system of labor protection which enables one factor—the employers—to form clubs and build expensive club houses, for expensive social purposes, while the other factor—the employed—are only about able to pay their way as they go, and that only by confining their expenditures to the absolute necessities of life. We don't take any stock in the dogmas of free trade, but at the same time we cannot reconcile ourselves to the consistency of that philosophy which exalts a proposition in favor of a thousand facts to the contrary. There are very few working men who are able to show any considerable accumulations of wealth as a reward for a life time of industrious labor, while on the other hand the manufacturer and speculator seem to have reaped the shekels, while dealing out sentiment and sophistry, with a lavish hand to their unsophisticated brethren. When we hear of mill hands, bricklayers, and house carpenters building $150,000 club houses we will have more faith in war tariff measures.

THE contemplated extension of the Reading railroad to Market street is affording property owners along the line a great deal of worryment. That the elevation of the tracks and the necessary stone work, arches, bridges, etc., accompanied with the noise, smoke, rumbling of cars and the indispensable clatter and dirt when the road is in working order will have a depreciating influence upon property in its vicinity there is no doubt, for the whole structure, except at its terminal, will prove an eyesore as well as an unmitigated nuisance for blocks beyond. The recent decision of the Supreme Court reversing Judge Finletter in the Merchant's case practically places an estoppel upon consequential damages, and Judge Finletter's charge, viz: that the measure of damages was the difference in the value of Mr. Merchant's property, 1711 Filbert street, immediately before the construction and its value after the construction of the Pennsylvania elevated. Although seemingly good equity and consistent with common sense, it is contrary to the ideas of justice entertained by the Supreme Court of the State.

The learned court in its decision holds that the line must be drawn, and that if the property owners on Filbert street are entitled to recover under the Constitution of the State, why not those on Arch or Race streets, and why not? If it is proven beyond question that damage is done, the New York Courts have held this to be the law in the cases against the New York elevated.

It is a sad condition of things to say the least, if a property owner under the laws and Constitution of his State has no redress for such a serious depreciation of the value of his home and property as was proven to be the fact in Merchant's case.

THE following is in answer to a note addressed to the Hon. William Walter Phelps, as to his intention as to rebuilding his mansion recently destroyed by fire:

OFFICE OF WILLIAM BENNETT, MANAGER FOR
WILLIAM WALTER PHELPS.
TEANECK, NEAR ENGLEWOOD, N. J.,
April 11th, 1888.

Mr. Jno. P. Gallagher.

DEAR SIR.—Mr. Phelps handed me your note of April 5th, and desires me to say that he does not contemplate rebuilding for at least one year, and has not time to even think of the matter at present.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM BENNETT.

At the meeting of the Master Builders' Exchange, held on Tuesday afternoon at the Exchange Building, resolutions were passed relating to arbitration. Among the several important features were that a joint committee of six be appointed; three on the part of the employer and three on the part of the workmen, the same to hold office continuously for the year. The committee will hold regular meetings for the purpose of settling disputes, in the mean time work to continue undisturbed. It being the understanding that the decisions of the committee shall be abided by peacefully whenever rendered. That the associations shall officially discontinue the subject of refusing to work with men who are not members of unions, or of refusing to work when the materials furnished are made or prepared by non-union men, and to discountenance discrimination against individuals that do or do not belong to societies. The resolutions regarding strikes and lockouts say that it should be agreed by the organizations interested that they should be prevented, and that questions at issue should only be considered when work is progressing. Should the special trade committee fail to agree upon any question brought before them, it is to be referred to a central standing committee to be appointed annually by the exchange, and which is to consist of three members on the part of the exchange and three upon the part of the council; in case this committee does not agree upon a settlement an umpire is to be selected and give a verdict. The Philadelphia Chapter of Architects was asked to appoint a committee of five to act with a committee of a like nature appointed by the Exchange in discussing plans and estimates.

Lard Adulteration.

The Senate Committee on Agriculture, while considering the bill requiring lard compounds to be stamped, elicited some astonishing facts as to the adulteration of lard and the vile character of lard compounds.

Mr. Hill, of Boston, an employee of Squire & Co., who are the proponents of the pending bill, produced samples of various compounds in tin pails, which he had purchased in open market and caused to be chemically examined. Professor Sharpless, who had made the examination, said a sample bearing the stamp of Armour & Co., "pure refined family lard," was found to contain about 60 per cent. of hog's lard, with twenty each of cottonseed oil and beef fat. A sample of Fairbanks & Co., Chicago, "prime refined family lard," was made of the same elements, but had a greater proportion of beef fat and cottonseed oil. A sample bearing the stamp of Halstead & Co., "pure family lard," and another from the same firm stamped in Spanish "pure lard registered," contained not a particle of hog lard, but were made entirely of beef fat and cottonseed oil.

Mr. Fairbanks said that twenty-five years ago lard oil was pressed from the hog product, leaving the stearine, a hard, waxy substance, for which there was little demand. Then a firm in New York conceived the idea of mixing this stearine with ordinary lard and formed a compound which gave better satisfaction, especially in warm countries, than the pure lard. Then the packing houses, in making lard, got to dumping into the pails every thing—heads, feet, intestines, etc.—and made a product which was offensive, having a "hoggy taste." The refiners cast about for something to neutralize this and found it in cottonseed. Out of a hundred tierces of packers' lard the refiners got about one tierce of mud and filth "as black as your coat." To the product thus refined and purified they now added 25 per cent. of cottonseed oil and 15 per cent. of stearine, which compound comprises seven-eighths of the lard now on the market. Once or twice when this compound ran short the pure lard had been supplied to customers, and witness was overwhelmed at once with complaints that customers were dissatisfied. If his lard should be adulterated with injurious substances the effect would quickly be communicated to him in reduced sales. He asserted the superior healthfulness of the compound lard as compared with pure hog fat lard, and when asked why he did not label it as a compound lard, said that the American people were not educated up to the use of oils yet.

When they are sufficiently educated, they will appreciate the compound of horse fat, dog fat, kitchen grease, and other tempting luxuries with which the market abounds.

THE design accepted for the New Masonic Temple to be erected on Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., presents the appearance of a large dry goods store, at all events it is very unlike a masonic temple.

A PLAN has been partially completed which will in a great measure do away with the complications which exist from the duplication of the various streets, lanes, courts and alleys, as the bill now in the hands of councils committee puts it. The entire city has been gone over by

THE number of feet of natural gas pipe which is laid by the different companies in Pittsburgh and Allegheny City, Pa., is as follows: Philadelphia, 1,380,161; Peoples, 146,997; Manufacturers, 56,640; Chartiers, 197,881; Washington, 19,748; Pennsylvania, 119,699.

As matters now stand, it seems as if Chestnut street would be widened by the setting back of the buildings from Jacoby's drug store at the corner of Tenth street to Reed's clothing store. The Sub-Committee of Highways will report favorably, and will recommend that the buildings be set back on a line with the other stores on the street. Those doing business at these places are naturally opposed to curtailing their store room, yet in a matter of such decided improvement to the appearance of our chief thoroughfare, which is daily gaining additional beauty by the erection of handsome buildings, one or two individual interests should not stand in the way.

Surveyor Smedley, with the exception of Twenty-second, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards, which, being in the suburbs, are more difficult to reconstruct. The method to be used can be better explained by illustration: The streets on a line with Church street, extending from Front to Twenty-second streets, and including Cox, Tranquair's court, Highland, Hunter, Silver, Jones and Fairfield streets, will be called by the name of Commerce street, from its being the best known thoroughfare in that line of streets. This same plan has been adopted all over the city. In selecting names, three points are made: first, the number of deeds recorded for properties on the street; second, the popularity; and, third, the desirability of the existing names. It can be readily seen that 1700 Commerce street is found with ease, while 1700 Jones street might cause many a weary search, there being no less than five streets thus called. In some instances the repetition of street names being much greater. All of these duplicates will be expunged from the city plan, and when the change has been perfected and new sign boards placed at the street corners, our city will be one of the easiest in which to go about on the face of the globe.

Building Boom in Minneapolis.

To form a proper idea of the booming building proclivities of the city of Minneapolis, Minn., it is only necessary to know that there are even at this early stage of the building season no less than ten important structures either under way, about to be commenced or which will soon be commenced, ranging in cost from $35,000 to $600,000; these include the new Colom block of which Oriff Bros. are the architects, and which will cost $60,000. The Guarantee Loan and Trust Company's building to cost $600,000. George A. Brackett's new six-story building on First avenue to cost $150,000. The National Bank of Commerce building on First avenue to cost $200,000. The J. F. Colom block on N. Second street to cost $150,000. The J. A. Wright building on Hennepin avenue to cost $130,000. The Lumber Exchange building addition to cost $200,000. The Eight-Story Globe building to cost $150,000. The Normania Hall building at South Minneapolis to cost $45,000. The Minneapolis Pumping Station to cost $214,000, and The Frank Crowell building on Lyndale and Lake streets to cost $35,000. It's a question if any city in the United States can make as good a showing as this is, and it is certainly indicative of a degree of prosperity unexcelled by any city on the continent.

At Wilmington, Delaware, a Master Builders' Exchange has been organized. Philemma Chandler has been elected President, and Daniel Stewart temporary Secretary.

THE NEW MECHANICS' LIEN LAW.

JUDGE ALLISON'S DECISION.

In the case of John Lucas & Co. vs. John Ruff, brought in Common Pleas No. 1, Judge Allison has given the following decision: John Sparhawk, jr., Esq., Attorney for John Lucas & Co., filed a lien under the old law; this was necessary because his clients, through ignorance of the new law, had failed to give the required ten days notice. In an argument upon a rule to strike off the lien, Mr. Sparhawk held that the new act was unconstitutional. The Judge in the following decision declares it to be constitutional. The case will probably be taken to the Supreme Court.

"It is contended that the act of 1887 is unconstitutional, because the subject to which it refers is not clearly expressed in its title, which is required to be done by the third section of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State.

The title of the act is, "Relating to the lien of mechanics and others upon buildings." The subject is therefore most clearly expressed in the title of the act. It treats of and relates to no other subject than the liens of mechanics and others. To do more than that which has been done would convert the title into a digest of the law, while the subject only is required to be clearly expressed. The title gives such notice of the subject of the act as reasonably to lead to an inquiry into the body or details of the law, and this has been held to be sufficient. It is also contended that the act of 1887 conflicts with the sixth section of the third article of the Constitution, which provides that no law shall be revived, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred by reference to its title only; but so much thereof as is revived, amended, extended or conferred, shall be reenacted and published at length. It is not worth while to discuss at length the question whether the first section of the act conflicts with this requirement, or whether it is in substantial accord with it. The requirement is that which the Legislature may do in reference to the subject covered by this sixth section, shall not be done by reference to title only. The Legislature may not revive, amend or extend or confer the provisions of any law, unless they do more than refer to the title of the law. In the first section the titles of the acts of 1836 and 1845 are recited with the dates of their enactment, but their provisions are sought to be not by this recital only, but by a declaration, clear and precise, of what further effect shall be given to those laws. They shall be construed to include claims for labor done by mechanics and laborers, in the erection and construction of a building, as liens are now allowed for materials furnished.

The change introduced into the mechanics' lien laws, whose titles are recited, is published at length; the Legislature did not, therefore, stop with mere recital of title; they went on to set forth at length and in this way to publish at length the entire amendment or extension of the former laws. Whether this meets the constitutional requirement may not be material, when the second section of the act is taken into consideration. This section does not attempt to revive a former law; the acts of 1886 were referred to in the first section as existing laws. When the sixth section of article 3 speaks of a revival of a law it can apply only to former law which had expired by its own limitations, or which had been repealed by subsequent legislation. It is a misuse of language to speak of reviving a law which at the time is in full force and effect. The word revived in this connection can only signify restoring or bringing to life again a former law, which had ceased to have power or life in it. This it directs shall be done by re-enacting it at length and cannot be done by reference to its title only. A mischief had formerly existed, the recurrence of which it was intended to effectually prevent by constitutional amendment, which provided that bills should contain but one subject and that they should not be revived by reference to title only. The act of April 16, 1845, is an illustration in point. This act contained ten or more entirely different subjects, to all of which legal effect was given, under the title concerning certain sheriffs' and coroners' sales and for other purposes. If this act had been repealed and afterwards revived by reference to its title, only the varied provisions would in this way all have been restored to the statute book with full force and legal effect. If our conclusion is well founded that so much of the sixth section as provides that to revive a law it must be re-enacted and published at length refers only to bringing back to life again a dead law, what remains to be said of the remaining portion of the section, which treats of the amendment of a law or where its provisions are extended or conferred? The answer is that this portion of the section is complied with when such amendment or extension of its provisions is published at length in the new law. This cannot be evaded or dispensed with. The reference to title only will no longer accomplish this result, and in this way the most ample security is provided against improvident or fraudulent legislation. To hold that an amendment or extension of a law requires the re-enactment of all former laws amended or extended, would demand in the case before us the re-enactment at length of tax acts of 1836 and of 1845, and of all the laws giving liens for work and materials in the construction and repair of machinery. This would not only be useless, it would tend to defeat the object intended to be secured by the constitutional amendments. The brief amendment set forth in the act of 1887 would be buried out of sight under this load of useless verbage. As it stands now, the amendment of the Lien Laws of the Commonwealth speaks for itself—its correct meaning we hope some time to be able to comprehend. We are not able, for the reasons stated, to support the contention of the plaintiff that the act of 1887, though it may be justly designated as careless and slovenly legislation, is unconstitutional. The court, even upon this question, requires that we abstain from declaring that the act of 1887 is in conflict with the constitution of the State. We are always to make haste slowly in reaching conclusions that will invalidate a law duly enacted and approved. Upholding the law for what it may be worth, we make the pending rule absolute.
